TWO VICTORIANS DROWN TO-DAY AT SHAWNIGAN

Wilfred Irving Francis and Marjorie Gilliland Victims of Speedboat Tragedy This Afternoon

Wilfred Irving Francis, 1742 Lee Avenue, and Marjorie Gilliland, 1321 Johnson Street, were drowned in a boating accident at Shawnigan Lake this afternoon, according to word reaching the city at 2.30 o'clock. Betty Francis, a sister of the young man, was saved by clinging to the boat, which swerved and threw its occupants into the water.

The three, who were staying at a summer home, had made a trip to the Shawnigan Lake store and were returning to the camp at the time. As the boat passed the Shawnigan Mill, on the east side of the lake, it swerved to miss an obstacle and the occupants were thrown out.

The two older persons went down immediately. Several people in boats nearby went to their assistance at once, but they were unable to locate the bodies.

F. W. Francis, father of the young man, left the city for Shawnigan Lake with his son, Hugh, as soon as word was received of the tragedy.

The bodies had not been recovered at 3 o'clock.

HEAVY LUMBER LOSS IN FIRE

Cowichan Lake Mill Loses 7,000,000 Feet in Store Yard Blaze

Cowichan Lake, August 9.—Upwards of 7,000,000 feet of stacked lumber was destroyed on Sunday at the plant of the Industrial Timber Mills Limited at Youbou, Cowichan Lake. About 800 feet of the crane way was burned and for a time the big electrically operated sawmill was in great danger. The fire broke out early on Sunday morning and every man in Cowichan Lake district was summoned to battle the flames.

A heavy downpour of rain yesterday morning aided the firefighters, but the embers are still being watched.

Little Lad Dies After Operation

At St. Joseph's Hospital this morning the death occurred of Derek, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Marshall of 1008—Bank Street. The little lad was taken ill a few days ago and operated upon for appendicitis, and appeared to be making good progress towards recovery, and his death came as a great shock.

Derek was the first member enrolled in the recently organized Victoria Daily Times Skyroads' Club, and a pathetic feature of his illness was that his first request after undergoing the operation was for his Skyroads' badge and second examination papers. The sympathy of a wide circle of friends is being extended to Mr. Marshall, who is city passenger agent for the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad, and Mrs. Marshall.

Japan Asks Stimson To Explain Speech

Foreign Office Studying U.S. Secretary of State's Remarks on War, Manchuria and Kellogg Pact

Tokyo, Aug. 9.—The Japanese Foreign Office to-day asked the embassy at Washington to send a detailed report of Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson's speech in New York, emphasizing his reference to Japan's action in Manchuria, with the possibility that "suitable representations" would be made if the official report bear out press dispatches on the speech.

Secretary Stimson's address was made yesterday evening before the Council of Foreign Relations. The Foreign Office spokesman was quoted in interviews as voicing indignation over the Manchurian references. Influential official elements were behind (Turn to Page 2, Col. 2)

MAILED FIST FOR GERMANS

Cabinet Prepares to Enforce Measures to End Political Rioting

Berlin, Aug. 9.—President von Hindenburg to-day approved a new emergency decree by which the German government hopes to put an end to political violence which has cost more than 100 lives in two months.

By W. E. Brockman, Associated Press Staff Writer

Berlin, Aug. 9.—The German government, goaded by two months of rioting, bombing, shooting and knife fighting, prepared to-day to swing its mailed fist and "brutally wielded" its authority to put an end to political disorders.

Returning from a holiday to find the local bloodshed and sabotage still going on, Chancellor Franz von Papen called his cabinet together to map a campaign to use the sternest measures, possibly including the death penalty, to restore peace throughout the Reich.

Defeat of C. R. Harold, Seattle, winner of the medal honors yesterday, and the elimination of A. T. Goward, the only Victorian in the championship flight, featured the first round of match play in the grand championship of the Seniors' Northwest Golf Association at the Colwood Links this morning.

Harold was beaten by J. P. Fell, Vancouver, 2 and 1, while Goward fell before Joshua Green, Seattle, 2 and 1.

Fell won the match from Harold with a birdie three on the seventeenth hole. Harold started off in grand style, having Fell 3 down at the fourth. Driving off the eleventh tee Fell was still two holes down but won the three holes in a row to take the lead.

Only two Canadians, Fell and L. A. Lewis, New Westminster, the first grand champion of the association, remain in the championship flight. Lewis to-day defeated B. F. Buckmaster, Tacoma, 3 and 1. All matches in the championship flight were closely contested, none ending before the sixteenth green.

The eight who survived the first round matches in the grand championship included three Seattle men, and one each from Vancouver, New Westminster, Portland, Aberdeen and Lewiston, Idaho.

This morning's results follow:

Malone Inquiry In Toronto To-morrow

Called By Mayor, Police Commission Will Investigate Arrest of Man Following Reports of Plot Against Life of Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas

Canadian Press
Toronto, Aug. 9.—Immigration officials, headed by J. C. Mitchell, Inspector at Toronto, to-day examined Daniel Malone to determine his status with regard to deportation. Malone, charged with vagrancy, is confined in the Toronto jail.

Arrested here last Friday, Malone, who is described by police as a Sinn Feiner, was held in connection with a rumored plot to assassinate Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, British Secretary for the Dominions, now in Ottawa with the British delegation to the Imperial Economic Conference.

LIVELY DISCUSSION
His detention has caused a furore in Toronto civic and police circles. Mayor W. J. Stewart, following a telephone conversation with Police Chief D. C. Draper yesterday, called an emergency meeting of the Toronto police commission to inquire into the circumstances of the case.

NEW SCHEME FOR EXCHANGE

Committee of Ottawa Conference Drafts Recommendations For Empire

Ottawa, Aug. 9.—A lengthy report dealing with various shades of the monetary and currency problems of the British Empire has been prepared by the sub-committee on financial questions of the Imperial Conference.

Publication of the report is being withheld until it is submitted to the main committee on monetary and financial matters. This will be done to-morrow. Assuming the report meets with approval, it is possible its recommendations will be available to-morrow evening.

PRICE LEVELS
While details of the report are withheld, it is understood it makes no definite recommendations for stabilization of exchange. On the other hand, the feeling is that it will contain some plan for dealing with the exchange problem and also some recommendations for raising price levels. It is felt the problem of varying and fluctuating exchange is a very important one which demands solution if trade is to flow easily between the different units of the Empire.

The sub-committee is headed by Hon. C. H. Cahan, Secretary of State of Canada, and the main currency committee has as its chairman, Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce.

Mr. McKenzie and Hon. J. W. Jones represented the British Columbia government at the conference.

All the delegates agreed to the proposed joint memorial to be presented to the Dominion government, asking assumption by the Dominion of one-half the cost of relief for married men with families, and full responsibility for single men in concentration camps.

VICTORIA MAN RIVER VICTIM

Reginald G. Dickinson Drowned Near Kamloops Learning to Swim

Swept off his feet by the swift underrcurrent of the South Thompson River, Reginald G. Dickinson formerly of Victoria, was drowned near Kamloops Sunday, according to advices received here yesterday afternoon.

The parents are Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Dickinson, 576 Dallas Road. One brother, W. Deane is in Mexico City and a sister, Lillian, is at home.

Mr. Dickinson, who was twenty-seven years of age, was formerly a member of the Canadian Bank of Commerce staff in Victoria, stationed at the Douglas-Cormorant Street branch. He was transferred to Vancouver and in May of this year went to Kamloops as assistant accountant in the branch there. He had previously worked in Duncan and Ladysmith branches. He was born and educated in Victoria.

He was unable to swim and went with two friends on the bank staff to a private bathing place on the river to learn. There was a shelling beach at the spot and it is thought he was drawn out of his depth into deep water. The body was not recovered.

Establishment of Permanent Secretariat Before Ottawa Assembly Ends Is Considered

Ottawa, Aug. 9.—Establishment of a permanent secretariat to deal with questions arising out of the Imperial Conference is a matter which will be considered before the meetings here terminate.

This has not yet been placed before the delegations in concrete form, but the understanding is that certain discussions looking toward such a body have been conducted informally, with much having been said in favor of an organization of that character.

FOR EXPERTS TO STUDY
Ottawa, Aug. 9.—Certain questions of an involved and technical nature will probably remain undecided at the close of the Imperial Conference here. They will be pursued further by experts of the various Empire countries interested who will report on some future occasion.

While the nature of these involved questions has not been definitely stated, it is understood the working out of standards and the reconciling of those in effect in the different countries may be one. The question of the Empire content required in commodities in order that they may receive preferential treatment may be another. These requirements vary in the different parts of the Empire.

Tells of Plans For Antarctic and Arctic Expeditions; Dr. L. D. A. Hussey Also Visits Ottawa

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Aug. 9.—Two explorers who braved the dangers of the Antarctic together were in Ottawa today renewing friendships—Sir Hubert Wilkins, famed Australian scientist, and Dr. L. D. A. Hussey, one of his companions on the Shackleton-Bowditch expedition of 1921. Sir Hubert came here to visit members of the Australian delegation to the Imperial Conference, Dr. Hussey is visiting relatives.

Plans for two separate expeditions to promote geographical knowledge, the first in the Antarctic in 1933 and the second in the Arctic in 1934, were outlined to interviewers by Sir Hubert. The Australian explorer will be accompanied by Dr. L. D. A. Hussey, a Canadian, and a party of five. The expedition is scheduled to start from Dunedin, New Zealand, late next year. A base is planned to be established near Byrd's Little America and the party will have special equipment.

Elsworth and Balchen plan a 3,000-mile flight over Ross Sea to ascertain if the vast area is a continent or a series of islands.

A submarine boat will also be taken along, of boiler-like construction, and will be used later on the North Pole expedition in 1934. He believes the members of the Antarctic expedition will be able to utilize it successfully by going under the pack ice which bars the way to the free water near the shore.

Sir Hubert said his visit to Ottawa had nothing to do with the Imperial Conference.

LEAGUE OFFICIALS IMPRESSED

Geneva, Aug. 9.—The speech of Henry L. Stimson, United States Secretary of State, before the Council on Foreign Relations in New York yesterday evening caused a profound impression in League of Nations circles today, coming as it did at a time of crisis in South America and unsettled problems in the Far East.

The feeling here was that it might have an important bearing on discussions which will precede the recon- vocation of the world conference on disarmament.

Likewise, it was thought, to have done much to clarify the position of the United States. Commentators dwell especially on what they saw as a reversal of the doctrine of neutrality as well as a realization of the fact that consultation by the United States with League members is inevitable necessity.

This was regarded as giving a guarantee that in any future call for action by the League the attitude of the United States will be known in advance and possible cause for embarrassment removed.

Associated Press

New York, Aug. 9.—Henry L. Stimson, United States Secretary of State, termed the Kellogg-Briand pact the codification of a far-reaching new doctrine of international relations in an address yesterday evening to the Council on Foreign Relations in which he outlined the government's policy under the treaty.

The new doctrine, which the treaty codified, he said, was that a war was the concern of every country, and not merely of the belligerents. Before the treaty, international law, he pointed out, was predicated to a large extent on a recognition of the legality of war. As an instance, he pointed to the treaty of Versailles, which was a neutral to take sides between belligerents or to pass a normal judgment.

The Great War changed that viewpoint, Secretary Stimson said, by demonstrating the modern world's greater vulnerability to war because of its complexity and the inconsistency of war with normal life of today.

"The destructiveness of war to civilization became more emphatic; the abnormality of war became more apparent," he declared.

The Secretary called the treaty to outlaw war more than a "moral statement" and said that a nation which sought to "mask imperialistic policy under the guise of protection of its own nationals would soon be unmasked."

REPLY ASKED

The text of the note to Bolivia was not made public, but it was learned that the note requested a prompt reply. It requested cessation of hostilities under an armistice based on the position of troops in the Chaco on June 1, and gave until August 10 to comply.

The action immediately followed a complaint from Paraguay that Bolivian troops had recaptured Port Carlos Antonio Lopez, a charge which the Bolivian Government promptly denied.

LETTERS PUBLISHED

Geneva, Aug. 9.—Three letters from Paraguay, including a statement that Paraguay would submit to arbitration of its Gran Chaco dispute with Bolivia and would "never declare war," were made public by the League of Nations yesterday evening.

The first note, from the Paraguayan delegate at Paris, denied a reported Bolivian statement that Paraguay had not ratified the Kellogg Anti-war Pact. It said Paraguay had ratified the pact October 8, 1929.

Paraguay would never declare war or indulge in acts of hostility without submitting to arbitration and would

On the Canadian side, it was understood, there was a disposition to go further in the encouragement of Canadian efforts to bring about a settlement of the dispute.

New Exchange Basis Suggested For Trade

Ottawa Conference Committee Considers Plan to Eliminate New York Interference Between Canada and Britain

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Aug. 9.—A proposal to steady the exchange between Canada and Great Britain and to economize in the transfer of money between the two countries is to be before the committee on monetary and financial questions of the Imperial Conference.

At present British importers pay for their Canadian purchases in Canadian dollars bought in New York and Canadian exporters pay for British goods in sterling, also bought in New York.

The proposal is that the Canadian banks pay for British purchases made in Canada at a fixed rate of exchange, and British banks pay for Canadian purchases made in the United Kingdom at a corresponding rate. At fixed periods there would be general accounting, say every six months, when differences between the total purchases in the two countries would be paid and a fresh start made. The governments would stand to protect the banks against loss in such an arrangement.

It is suggested this would avoid the continual transfer of funds and the purchase of exchange in New York, and that in addition the exporters and importers would know just what the exchange rate between the two countries would be for a given period.

With the fluctuations in exchange and the costs of thus transferring money, this makes for uncertainty and expense.

With the fluctuations in exchange and the costs of thus transferring money, this makes for uncertainty and expense.

The proposal is that the Canadian banks pay for British purchases made in Canada at a fixed rate of exchange, and British banks pay for Canadian purchases made in the United Kingdom at a corresponding rate. At fixed periods there would be general accounting, say every six months, when differences between the total purchases in the two countries would be paid and a fresh start made. The governments would stand to protect the banks against loss in such an arrangement.

It is suggested this would avoid the continual transfer of funds and the purchase of exchange in New York, and that in addition the exporters and importers would know just what the exchange rate between the two countries would be for a given period.

Subway Fire In New York

Several Persons Overcome By Smoke; 2,000 Passengers Walk Out Of Tunnel

Outbreak Caused By Short Circuit In Power Cable; Police Give Aid

Associated Press

New York, Aug. 9.—Fire in the East side subway near the Brooklyn Bridge, tied up underground traffic for hours today and forced 2,000 passengers to walk through the tunnels to emergency exits.

One woman was taken to a hospital suffering from smoke and shock and several firemen were overcome.

The fire started from a short circuit in the power cable in the Interborough Rapid Transit Subway, at Canal and Lafayette Streets, filling the subway with smoke for several blocks.

Fire apparatus and ambulances were quickly called.

Lines of hose were run into the subway, but the order to turn on the water was not immediately given. Instead, a call was sent in for a rescue squad. All policemen in the region busied themselves plunging down through the emergency exits and assisting or carrying passengers to the street.

A second alarm was turned in soon after the first.

Malone Inquiry In Toronto To-morrow

chief constable in all lawful procedure for the maintenance of law and order.

"At the same time, one of the most cherished possessions of British subjects is liberty. My sole purpose in taking this matter up was to see where the instructions were issued, and by whom, resulting in the apprehension of the individual in question—and to satisfy the Board of Police Commissioners that the police department, of which I am chairman, is in no manner unwarrantably interfering with the liberty, not alone of this man Malone, but of any citizen. Liberty is priceless.

In a statement Mayor Stewart said: "Chief Draper's argument is simply to keep the whole thing out of the press. I said to him that I had been asked by a section of the press as to whether General MacBrien (R.C.M.P. Commissioner at Ottawa), had issued the circular or not, and the chief replied: 'I wouldn't tell the press anything.' Pressed further, the chief replied he would only give me the details of the matter in confidence. I said to him: 'If you have anything to communicate to me I want no strings to it.' Finally, Chief Draper declared he was not doing anything. Tell them to keep it out of their papers."

REPORT REVIEWED

The report is said to contain the following recommendations:

1. Retention in all departments, to the extent of $6,000,000.

2. Merger of several departments to reduce overhead.

3. A six-man cabinet.

4. Reduction in the personnel of the Legislature to fourteen members.

5. Check-up in administration of social services.

6. Abolition of the agent-general's office in London.

U.S. FLOATERS.
COME TO B.C.

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Aug. 9.—Hundreds of "floaters" from the state of Washington, practically all of them United States citizens, are reported drifting across the boundary into British Columbia, with Vancouver generally as their destination.

Canada maintains no border patrol in British Columbia and crossing of the boundary outside the recognized gateways is an easy matter.

MAN MURDERED
IN NEW YORK

Associated Press
New York, Aug. 9.—Joseph Miller, returned home yesterday morning, stumbled over something in a burial bag which had been tossed into the middle of the street.

It was the body of a man.

Police found the man, about thirty-five years old, well dressed and well groomed, had been stabbed twenty times through the heart, apparently with an ice pick.

There was no clue to the man's identity.

FOREST FIRE IN MINE AREA

Spokane, Aug. 9.—Forest fires in three areas, all believed to have been lightning-set, caused eastern Washington and north Idaho fighters anxiety to-day.

Seventy-five men, twenty-five of them miners, were sent against a fire on Government Ridge, above the big zinc plant of the Bunker Hill and Sullivan Mining and Concentrating Company at Kellogg, Idaho. The flames were creeping up the ridge toward the Sidney mine, and tramway, but the zinc plant was not believed to be in danger.

Lightning set ten fires in the Nepelem district of eastern Washington, but eight of these were under control this morning.

Speeches at Opening of Laboratory Extension in Ottawa To-morrow Evening to Be Broadcast

Montreal, Aug. 10.—At 9 o'clock to-morrow evening, eastern standard time (6 p.m. Victoria time), the new National Research laboratories building in Ottawa will be formally opened by the Governor-General in the presence of the Imperial Conference delegates and a large group of distinguished visitors, including members of scientific societies in Canada and the United States. The proceedings will be picked up by the Canadian National Railways and broadcast over a national network of Canadian stations. It will be heard on the Pacific Coast from radio station C.N.R.V., Vancouver.

Hon. H. H. Stevens, chairman of the cabinet committee on scientific and industrial research, will preside. Addresses will be given by Premier Bennett and Dr. H. M. Tory, chairman of the National Research Council.

LIBRARY ROOMS

The new building, which is four stories high, is built on a site of ten acres at the junction of the Rideau and Ottawa rivers in Ottawa. The structure is of classic design and so constructed that sunlight may reach every unit in the building throughout the year, with the exception of the subbasement. One of the most significant features is the library, which has a maximum capacity of 300,000 volumes and will be available to all the scientists in Canada. The library of the Royal Society of Canada will be housed in the new building.

Extending from the basement floor through the first floor in the rear of the building, space has been provided for a high capacity machine to test the strength of materials in tension, bending and compression. The machine for this purpose has a capacity of 3,000,000 pounds. Space has also been provided for a high tension electrical laboratory. Provision has been made for the prosecution of research in at least four main divisions—chemistry, physics, biology and standardization.

The staff of the National Research Council now totals 119. Approximately half of these belong to the professional staff.

The new building will be a great workshop in which to promote the largest scientific processes in the utilization of the natural resources of Canada.

YOUTH HUNTED IN SAN FRANCISCO

Associated Press

San Francisco, Aug. 9.—Clues which an alleged confession made by John Santis, twenty-two, to a friend spurred efforts of authorities here to-day in their search for Santis in connection with the slaying of fourteen-year-old Dina Sideris, whose battered body was found near a roadway yesterday.

Inspector Harry Husted said Roy T. Saenz, a friend of Santis, was the man to whom the alleged confession had been made. The inspector quoted Saenz as saying Santis had come to him early yesterday morning and declared: "I have killed a girl."

Saenz was further quoted by police as declaring Santis said he had killed the girl because she had called him names while he was repairing her bicycle. Investigators announced parts of the dismantled bicycle were found in a lubricating shop where Santis was employed.

Premier Tolmie Joins in Provinces' Discussion With Bennett

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Aug. 9.—Provincial government representatives conferred here yesterday with Premier Bennett on the question of increasing Canadian-sawn lumber exports to the United Kingdom. Proposals of greater tariff preference and means of control of Russian lumber exports to Great Britain were discussed at a private meeting.

The conference was attended by Premier Tolmie of British Columbia, Hon. William Finlayson, Ontario Minister of Lands and Forests; Premier C. D. Richards of New Brunswick; and Premier Gordon S. Harrington of Nova Scotia.

Preceding the meeting with the Dominion provincial representatives held conversations yesterday afternoon: British Columbia, Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island were represented.

Arising out of early conferences with British lumber importers, Canadian proposals to the Imperial Conference are for an increase in the preference from 10 to 20 per cent and control of exports from the Soviet Union. An embargo was suggested as the means of control.

MANY RUMORS
IN OTTAWA

One Report Says Empire Conference Rapidly Nearing Close

By W. W. Murray, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Aug. 9.—With the departure from New York to-day of Dr. James Ryan, Minister of Agriculture in the Irish Free State Government and a member of the Irish delegation to the Imperial Conference, there has been hatched out the customary brood of rumors. Of these the most persistent is that the conference is rapidly moving toward its close. Certain it is, according to a member of one delegation to-day, that from now on the technical advisers to the various groups will gradually withdraw, their work ended.

The opinion supports the conviction that the deliberations of the conference are in their ultimate stages, that the labor which ordinarily fell to those whose job was to clear away the statistical brushwood before constructing the economic log-cabin have been well and truly accomplished. And, consistent with the character of the conference, it is much more economical to return them to their home duties than to keep them kicking their heels in Ottawa.

DISCUSSING DETAILS

Many phases of the conference have got beyond the realm of speculation. It is known that all the delegations are now wrestling with definite terms. The daily press conferences have furnished the clues, but correspondents are still left to their own resources in finding a way out of the labyrinth of "adventurous prognostication" which they have created for themselves. All the Dominions, with the exception of the Irish Free State, have submitted their terms to Great Britain. Canada has instituted negotiations with the other states of the Commonwealth. And, since there are nine separate delegations here, with the Free State abstaining from negotiating with the United Kingdom, the cumulative agreements to be discussed and concluded would total thirty-five.

Presumably, however, a number of these will be multi-lateral, in which case the total would be reduced.

BRITISH STATEMENT

The communication sent yesterday by Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, leader of the British delegation, to Premier Bennett, has sent a buzz through conference circles. No inkling of the contents of that note has been disclosed, and as a consequence the air is full of "probabilities." The Canadian proposals were placed before the British last week, and the likelihood is that the letter places on record the reaction of the United Kingdom group to these proposals. Negotiations thereon will follow in natural sequence.

IRISH WHEAT GROWING

Dublin, Aug. 9.—The encouragement of wheat growing figures prominently in the new agricultural programme of the Irish Free State government.

The importance of this development led to the recall of Dr. James Ryan, Minister of Agriculture, who has been at Ottawa as a member of the Free State delegation to the Imperial Conference.

Accompanied by P. J. Mayrick, secretary of his department, Dr. Ryan is reported to have left Ottawa yesterday evening.

The Dial may be asked to vote a $2,000,000 wheat subsidy for the next season, as the government considers that out of 1,000,000 acres of arable land, 250,000 sown to wheat would not be excessive.

TERRAPLANING
here's the evidence!

IN automobile advertising nowadays "all the little fishes talk like whales."

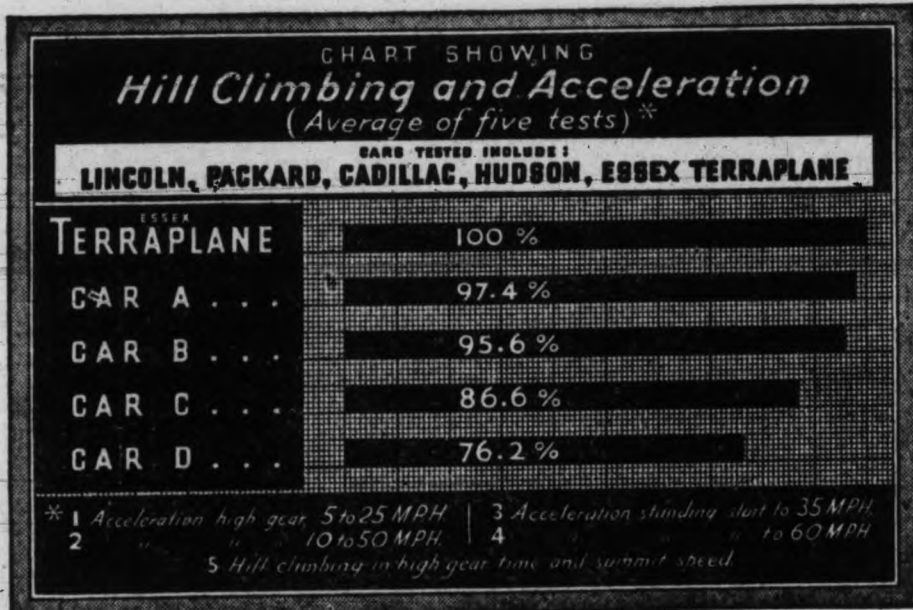

Hence, when a car that is really new and revolutionary is ready for description, the language is weak from abuse.

That's why it takes a new word—TERRAPLANING—to picture the joyously thrilling performance of this radically new-type car, the ESSEX.

It's a totally different kind of performance—a skimming, dashing, get-there, safely close-to-the-road swift smooth motion such as has not been enjoyed before except in planing on the water or in the air!

We feel it is idle to challenge your credulity with generalities about this performance.

Your experience with conventional cars will probably discount the glow-

This chart is based on tests made by the scientists of Guggenheim School of Aeronautics, New York University. The cars used were all 1932 designs, stock production, none being specially fitted or tuned for the purpose. Performances were clocked both by stopwatch and Accelerometer. Testing hill was the steepest gradient of its distance East of the Rockies ing things we might say about its nimble surging getaway, its split-second acceleration, its dogged whisper-quiet six-cylindered pneumomounted power on the hills.

So we asked the scientists of Guggenheim School of Aeronautics, New York University, to measure the action of the ESSEX TERRAPLANE against earlier designs.

Just to make it interesting, we suggested it be matched not merely against cars competitively priced but against the costliest and finest mechanisms that American automotive engineering genius has devised.

Herewith, graphed on the chart, you see the results.

Look them over, see what TERRAPLANING means, and then remember you get it in the new ESSEX at a price that's actually down among and UNDER the former lowest-priced Three!

South African Wine
For Ontario Users

Canadian Press

Toronto, Aug. 9.—Samples of wines made in South Africa are on the way to the Ontario liquor control board offices, where they will be turned over to the official taster.

Senator J. P. Malan, South African delegate to the Imperial Conference at Ottawa, called on Ex-Judge J. M. McNamara, a member of the Ontario control board, and asked to have South African wines placed on Ontario's list.

Mr. McNamara told Senator Malan if his country's wine was as good as that of Australia and as cheap, there was "no good reason" why it should not be on the board's list.

Trust the Canadians,
Says Beaverbrook

Canadian Press

London, Aug. 9.—Lord Beaverbrook, in his London Sunday Express, urged British ministers at the Ottawa Imperial Economic Conference to cease what he termed their "propaganda" in the British press depreciating the value of Canada's trade offer.

"Suppose the Canadian offer is not good enough, which I do not acknowledge for a moment," the Canadian-born peer wrote: "What folly it would be on that account not to lay the foundations of a new empire."

"Don't tell me the old story about the obstacles of the manufacturing industries in Canada and Australia. Let our ministers give up their attacks on Mr. Bennett and propaganda in the British press depreciating the value of the Canadian offer."

"Trust the Canadian as you trusted them in 1914. Throw the responsibility on Mr. Bennett."

RELIEF PLAN
IN BURNABY

Edmonds, B.C., Aug. 9.—Reeve W. A. Pritchard will issue relief orders in Burnaby as long as retail merchants will honor his signature, despite a resolution to the council ordering cessation of relief August 15.

The reeve announced that at a council meeting yesterday when a recommendation that Councillors L. Lambert, Harold Martin and the reeve go over to Victoria to interview the government on relief matters was defeated on a tie vote.

Reeve Pritchard, in making his recommendation, told the council that while attending the conference of western Canadian representatives in Edmonton, Hon. J. W. Jones, Minister of Finance of British Columbia, had stated he would answer certain questions regarding direct relief "in Victoria." This referred particularly to Burnaby's application for authority to borrow $155,000 to finance direct relief, the reeve said.

EARTH AND MOON

WAS THE MOON EVER A PART OF our earth, and did it, aeons ago, become detached and determine that, henceforth and forever, it would follow, at a discreet distance, its planetary parent in its rather stereotyped and monotonous timetable through the heavens? At present the moon is our nearest neighbor. There are occasions when we find it very useful, and others when it is regarded by some people as a nuisance. It affects tides on the earth and, according to neurologists, the mentalities of some of our people—how many, nobody really dares say. On the whole, we ought to know more about it. Indeed, from the standpoint of propinquity we ought to be more intimately interested in the moon than in any other planet or fragment of a planet.

We ought to know why, if the moon ever was part of this earth, it cut loose from us; just where and what it was before it left us. Who was to blame? Were we too uncouth, barbaric or stupid—as stupid as we have been in the last quarter of a century—for instance—for the moon to endure, or did it conclude that we were too straight-laced, intolerant Puritanical and orthodox and, deciding to go on a bender, lag so far behind that it has been unable to catch up to us ever since?

If the moon once was part of the earth, what part was it? Was it one of our so-called lost continents? Who was on it when it cut loose? We have a considerable number of earthly inhabitants who ought to be on it now, but unhappily we have not been able to establish contact with it. If there are people in the moon, and they are as stupid as the moon looks when it is full, or even half-full, it is unfortunate that a large proportion of our terrestrial population missed that trip.

But while some scientists insist that the moon once was part of the earth, others maintain that it was not. Mr. W. Goodacre, former president of the Royal Astronomical Society, who is one of the distinguished scientists now visiting this city, claims that the moon always has been a separate entity. That view is rather complimentary to the moon, of course, for even in astronomy a clean ancestry stands for something. Mr. Goodacre has spent ten years drawing a map of the moon and he ought to know something about it. If there is anybody in the moon equally interested in the earth to draw a map of it, some of us would like to see it. But whether the moon ever was part of the earth or not, we wish it would quit butting into our weather arrangements. If in any way it has been responsible for our atrocious summer out here, it has much to answer for.

To the lay mind it is not surprising that if scientists differ regarding the moon, which is only 240,000 miles away from us and has been hanging around at that distance ever since we can remember, they are bound to disagree regarding the larger, more distant and—if we may use the term—more aristocratic, heavenly luminaries. Sir James Jeans, for example, claims that the whole universe is working so hard sending out radiations of various kinds that it is wearing itself out. He says the sun which, by the way, is a rather unimportant sun in the solar roster and has duties of a comparatively trivial character—such as warming our earth—is exhausting itself in the exemplary discharge of its physical obligations. Other suns, of which there are millions, billions or trillions, as the case may be, are doing the same. In fact, according to Jeans and Eddington and their school, the whole universe is overworking itself, and, unless it takes a rest cure, eventually—some millions of years hence—will drop its tools and call it a union day.

But lest our readers become depressed over this doleful hypothesis, we hasten to reassure them by pointing out that there are other equally renowned scientists who insist that the universe, which includes our own particular sun, our inquisitive moon and our somewhat bizarre and fantastic earth, is renewing its youth; that, in fact, nothing is destroyed; that the firmament is illimitable and eternal and every solar radiation of energy is the birth-pang of some fresh physical power. Whichever side is right, we can safely conclude that "there are more things in heaven and earth than are dreamt of in our philosophy," and in our tiny, molecular and unscientific way realize that if the universe were not under the direction of a Supreme Intelligence it would have smashed up long before this world was born.

IRON AND STEEL

IT WOULD APPEAR THAT THE PRINCIPAL difference between the Canadian and the British point of view on the subject of greater trade between the two countries is that Canada would prefer to divert some of the business she is at present giving foreign countries to Britain, while Britain's desire is a lower Canadian tariff so that her products may enter the Canadian market direct and compete in this field. The British delegates evidently think the diversion proposal is too problematical—that it is hardly likely to work out as beneficial for Britain as it might appear on the surface.

Much has been made of the possibility of diverting a substantial part of the iron and steel products orders which Canada sends annually to the United States. But this proposal must be considered from more than one standpoint. The iron and steel industry of Great Britain has adapted itself for the British and continental European trade practically exclusively. The type of product it turns out differs in various particulars from the type used on this continent. Were it, therefore, to attempt to invade the Canadian market it would in the first place be compelled to change its standards to conform to the standards in use in this country. This would mean that it would have to do one of two things. It would either be compelled to change its complete mechanism in the Old Country so that it could turn out the new standards to compete in Canada with the foreign product, or else it would be obliged to build plants in Canada to achieve the same purpose. The prospect of having to do this naturally does not fire the British delegates with enthusiasm for this part of the diversion proposal.

As far as the iron and steel products interests of Canada, Great Britain, and the United States are concerned, there is no secret about this condition. Constructional requirements of this continent are more or less uniform and differ very considerably from those of Great Britain and continental Europe. So that while there is a very natural desire on the part of Canada to turn more of this business over to Great Britain, it is not so easy for Britain to take advantage of the offer. It is to be hoped, however, that some formula may be discovered by which Britain's iron and steel industry may be benefited.

THE FAIR

THE FACT THAT THE LAST CON- tracts for display space in the Manufacturers' and Industrial Buildings for the British Columbia Agricultural Association's annual fair—August 22 to 27—have been signed is a happy augury for the success of this annual event. It is announced that there is no more space available in these buildings.

Never was it more imperative than it is at the present time for local manufacturers to put their goods in the window so that the consuming public may know what is produced locally and learn how it compares with the competing imported article.

It is not enough to stage "buy-at-home" weeks every year. True, they produce a little flurry of community loyalty, but their effect is not sufficiently lasting to be of much value. The Junior Chamber of Commerce has done excellent work in this direction; but it has had to admit that enthusiastic public co-operation is lacking.

The fact remains that a greater demand for the local article is the quickest way to stimulate business and increase payrolls. Bigger business and bigger payrolls, of course, mean lower taxation.

STILL IN TROUBLE

CONTINUED RIOTING AND BLOOD- letting in Germany have goaded the Von Papen ministry into the promulgation of an emergency decree under which it will "brutally wield" its authority to put an end to political disorders. Included in its terms is power to impose the death penalty in extreme cases. It also provides for special "speed" courts to deal with a whole series of crimes denominated as terrorist, including gun toting, flooding, arson, bombing, and attempts to tamper with the railways, regardless of whether loss of life is involved.

It was only to be expected when the German government made it known that it would interpret the recent elections as an endorsement of its policies by the electorate—that it would continue to govern and defy the Reichstag to oust it—that it was merely borrowing still more trouble for itself and the country as a whole. Having taken that attitude, however, it will have to go through with it, let the consequences be what they may. But if the "mailed fist" is swung too ruthlessly, or what the government's opponents think is too ruthlessly, the country may soon find itself in the throes of a civil war.

It is being suggested, on the other hand, that the gathering in Berlin within the next day or so of the leaders of all the major parties of the new Reichstag presages the possibility of Hitler's National Socialists entering the government. Dr. Bruening's Catholic Centrists, who heretofore have been opposed to participation in the government by the Hitlerites, now seem inclined to insist that the Nazi party must show, by its entry into the cabinet, how many of its campaign promises it can fulfill. It will be understood from all this, therefore, that the principal trouble spot in Europe to-day is Germany.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

EMPIRE TRADE
 Le Soleil, Quebec

For years the trade of Britain with other parts of the empire has been unfavorable to her. This state of things cannot endure indefinitely. Above all, the Old Country cannot go on paying for the luxury of breaking her commercial relations with the rest of the world with the object of only doing business with the empire from which at present she is only realizing losses. Here is the crux of the problem, and we are afraid that it may be difficult to solve it at one conference, where there will undoubtedly be more fine words than practical effects. This is not what we want. But it is just as well to foresee the difficulties, in order to prepare to overcome them. There is no use in optimistic outbursts, if we are to experience another fiasco through a lack of serious reflection and a sensible economic point of view.

A CONTEST OF BORES
 The New York Times

Tournaments of golf and tennis stars and bathing beauties are not enough to satisfy The Montgomery Advertiser's love of competitions. It has suggested a national annual contest among the bores of the country. The purpose is not to divert the public, but to reduce the contestants, in the course of a few years, to a negligible minimum.

How they would destroy each other is left to the imagination—probably they would bore each other to death.

There would be no public hearings. Entrants in the tournaments would be shut up in unventilated circus tents. The judges would have to suffer with them, but the Alabama paper does not recommend inviting any one else. People are so fond of contests that they would probably pay even to attend this sort of struggle, but for their own good they would be denied admission. Only one newspaper reporter, for his sins, would be present, and his only work would consist in announcing the name of the winner.

The selection of contestants seems a delicate matter. They might be chosen by secret ballot, or The Advertiser, having been bold enough to propose the thing, might be required to risk its popularity by nominating candidates.

By H. B. W.

GRETA GARBO went home to Sweden the other day and the circumstances of her going are worth your consideration. When Miss Garbo went to Sweden it was first-page news in every newspaper in America. Even though she refused to say anything, even though she locked herself in her cabin to avoid newspaper men, even though she was only a movie actress, grown rather thin and oldish, every circumstance of her departure was telegraphed to the ends of the continent and read eagerly by untold millions. My own estimate is that more Canadians read about the departure of Miss Garbo, than about the departure of the Emperor of the United States, than about the Imperial Conference, which becomes less intelligible as more and more is written about it.

THIS, I SAY, is worth your consideration because it shows you the mental state of the people of this continent, ourselves included. A leading American journalist who went about the United States recently to find out what the people were thinking about politics, came back and reported that they were thinking about Miss Garbo, the baseball season and Amos and Andy, which is just what I expected. Here we have developed an economic system so delicate that an economic system so delicate that a least bump puts it on the blink, a political system utterly dependent on the intelligence of the voters to keep it going, a civilization so complex that all the members of it must be intelligent if it is to work at all; here we have a people who must rule themselves wisely or be ruled by someone else, and behold, in the third year of depression, in the midst of the crisis, in the year of the Imperial Conference and the Presidential election they are thinking of two radio entertainers, a baseball season and a Swedish actress!

AN OUTSIDE observer must admit that as a race we are not equal to our civilization, we are not capable of running it, our mechanics and our economics are about a century ahead of us. And while we are not intelligent enough to run the world, we are intelligent enough to be the big business barons—aren't honest enough and can't be trusted to do it. But the outside observer would be all wrong. What he would fail to understand is that, under the cover of our colossal ignorance and our doddering inefficiency, we have a peculiar native wisdom of our own and a cunning way of handling matters to suit ourselves. We have the wisdom not to be appalled and terrified by the structure of the civilization we have created, the good sense, when economics and politics are crashing down about us, to watch the baseball scores instead, to listen to Amos and Andy rather than the sounds of ruin. In the dark night of a flourishing civilization we have time for a look at a good-looking Swedish gal. What the outside observer could never understand is that, in spite of our overworking civilization we are not overpowered, in spite of our modern improvements we still have the faculty of happiness, in spite of the seriousness of the present crisis we still refuse instinctively to take ourselves seriously. That is why everything is going to be all right.

UP AT OUR lake there is a lawyer and, in justice to the whole breed of lawyers, breed which, while within the law, seems to have fallen low, in public estimation like politicians and newspapermen—in justice to lawyers, I think a few words should be said about this one and his horse. Yes, this lawyer has a horse in a field behind his country place, an old bay horse which seems to spend his entire life in contemplation under the shade of a maple tree. I have seldom seen him anywhere else in the last five years and under no circumstances does he demean himself by any form of work. Like his master, he lives by his wits and he lives well, too, on good oats, carrots and lumps of sugar. I took the trouble the other day to inquire the history of this horse and to find out how he came to occupy the field of an eminent King's Counsel, who had utterly no use for him. What I found goes to prove that you never know about people; even lawyers have their better moments.

I LEARNED, THEN, that for many years this horse used to draw a baker's wagon in Victoria and deliver bread to the lawyer's house just at breakfast time. The lawyer, seeing him come up the street, would steal a couple of lumps of sugar from the breakfast table, sneak out of the room when the family wasn't looking and feed the sugar to the baker's horse. Their friendship went on unbroken and serene for many years. At last the horse grew too old and slow for the baker's trade and he was about to get rid of him. This meant that he would probably be sold to a fur farm for fox food.

THIS GREATLY disturbed the lawyer, who was accustomed to deal with all kinds of human suffering and great questions of jurisprudence without the slightest emotion. Finally he hit upon the plan of smuggling the horse, unknown to his family, up to his summer place on our lake. The baker, having no use for the horse, gave him to the lawyer with his blessing and he was taken to our lake forthwith. But keeping an old horse is not as easy as it sounds. It meant clearing several acres of ground, it meant a lot of fencing and the building of a barn. The lawyer himself, this eminent King's Counsel who wore a silk gown in court, could be seen any day toiling with shovel and mattock and saw in clothes which made passersby imagine that he was some poor destitute settler. It took several years to fix the field just as he wanted it for his useless horse, and when that was done he cleared another space to grow oats for him. For four or five years now all the lawyer's holidays, every week-end in the year have been spent in hard labor to support of horse, and the lumps of sugar which the horse has earned in the time, he laid out to end would stretch from our lake to the lawyer's office in Victoria and back again three times and a half (according to my own calculation). And the horse pays for all this trouble and expense by standing all day under a maple tree and being serenely happy. This is exactly the payment that the lawyer desires.

I AM haunted, You may have suspected that for a long time. You probably have imagined that I have been haunted all along by the ghosts of strange politics and dangerous economics, but it is something worse than that. I am haunted by a little man with a red face and a quart of goat's milk. Mind you, he is a kindly ghost. He has the best intentions but he is getting on my nerves, and I have a feeling that I shall not escape him much longer. You see, I have been giving him a lift to town every morning for a long time and I think I have recorded here some of his profound economic views, among them the theory that times are bad because most people haven't got enough money and the other dangerous notion that the Great War really wasn't much use. Lately he has taken to talking of goats. He has told me all about goats until I can answer any question on the subject, and he has insisted that I must keep a goat.

TO CLING the matter he has offered me a quart of goat's milk which, he says, will prove to me that it is superior to cow's milk. Now I have no use for goat's milk and the fact that it is a superior article interests me not at all. I have made every excuse for escaping him. I have changed my time of going to town and coming back, but it is no use. He is always standing on the corner and he always comes to come to his house on my way home and get my quart of goat's milk. It has been waiting for me there a week now in a lard pail. The little red-faced man grows more restive and insistence. As I went by just now I saw him running out of his house with the lard pail in his hand but I pretended not to notice him and stepped on the gas. It is getting serious because he won't stop here. If somebody doesn't do something about it right away, I am going to wake up some morning with a goat on my hands and what with you and the political crisis, and the week-end and the fate of civilization, I have got quite enough on my hands already. To avoid it, I may have to stop going to town altogether. For as long as one has the public, what need is there for a goat?

R.C. BOYS BARRED FROM CIVIL SERVICE

To the Editor:—One of the many serious features of the present unemployment situation is the lack of opportunity for boys who have just left school, to obtain employment or training which will fit them for a definite career for the future. Enforced idleness over a protracted period, immediately after leaving school, must necessarily have an effect exceedingly detrimental to the individual, and in many cases, at the present time, adds greatly to the financial difficulties of families already overburdened.

It might reasonably be expected that the civil service of the province, spread over 370,000 miles of territory, would provide a number of openings for young men, with reasonable progress to a living wage during years of training, and further promotion by merit as years go on. Unfortunately, the civil service, through its government, deliberately withholds any prospect of advancement for the young man entering its service. The need for juniors with some years of systematic training was never greater in the service when drastic economy is required, than it is to-day.

I speak with absolute knowledge when I say that there is a large number of positions throughout the provincial service to-day, which could be, and should have been, filled by young men with some years of training after school age, and that great economy and increased efficiency would have been effected thereby.

Every modern administration considers that it has a very definite asset in the training of young men or women, in its service but, in British Columbia, this has been regarded as wholly negligible and conditions have been made so impossible that the young man has been forced out of the service to make way for untrained appointees at much higher salaries.

Formerly, a boy entering the British Columbia service, had no guarantee that he would ever reach a living wage, and even if the so-called "starvation" increase were not withheld for periods of four or five years in succession, as was the case, the most he could hope for was to attain to a monthly salary of $70 per month, after seven years' training, with no political influence. Sometimes the young man was held for a time by specious promises, but only too frequently, to find that, when a vacancy occurred and promotion was possible, the position was filled by an untrained appointee at a higher salary than his own, and, to add to the irony of the situation, he would be compelled to instruct in his duties, the very individual by whom he had been robbed of promotion. Naturally, the more efficient and valuable the young man was, the more quickly he was lost to the service.

In 1929, while acting as departmental commissioner, the writer prepared a scheme by which reasonable advancement to a living wage might be guaranteed to juniors entering the service, during what might be termed an apprenticeship period, quite independent of any vagaries of the elusive statutory (?) increase at the same time giving the boy an opportunity to increase his pay through increasing his qualifications by his own efforts. (At the same time a scheme was submitted governing the pay of girl stenographers.) The plan was fully discussed and approved by deputies and heads of departments, and both schemes were finally approved by order in council as regulations to the Civil Service Act, and, as such, became a part of the act. Incidentally, it may be remarked that, although the Civil Service Act calls for the creation of regulations by order-in-council, under which it is to operate, and the act had been in force since 1921, these were the first regulations which had ever been enacted.

Last year, in the government's well-advertised economy drive, it arbitrarily made deductions from civil service salaries ranging from 10 per cent on the higher to 2 per cent on the lower, without regard to whether the individual was over, adequately, or under paid. It was a good move politically. The general public approved the principle and knew nothing of individual cases, and the civil servant, individually and collectively, no matter how unjustly affected, was compelled to remain inarticulate and had no court of appeal. The scale of deduction, too, appeared reasonable, was not the biggest percentage being taken from the biggest salaries? But one drastic economy, at the expense of the individual, was not advertised. The government made no mention of the fact that besides the 2 per cent deducted from the salaries of the young men and women in the civil service junior branches, it had illegally omitted from the previous estimates the increases to which these young men and women (many of them, undoubtedly, the mainstay of homes during these troublous times) were definitely entitled under the regulations to the Civil Service Act, and under which many of them had entered the service of the province. This means that, in addition to the 2 per cent deduction announced, there was a deduction of approximately 20 per cent last fiscal year increasing to over 30 per cent in the present fiscal year, from the lowest salaries in the civil service.

In other words, the boy who entered the service at the age of seventeen will, at the age of 25, receive 45 per cent less, 2 per cent, or whatever further arbitrary deductions he may be subjected to, if there is no change in the present situation. Naturally, the moment that any improvement in conditions comes about, these boys will be lost to the service with their years of training, and the melancholy process will start over again.

Economy and efficiency demands that a very considerable number of positions in the civil service must be filled by systematically trained juniors. This can only be achieved by getting these boys, training them, treating them with decency and justice and giving them absolute assurance that the way to promotion by merit will be kept clear. Surely British Columbia has not fallen so low, either morally or financially, that it must attempt to patch up its financial mess by pilfering from the pockets of youngsters who have barely taken the first step in a business career.

Fifty thousand to $100,000 per annum might have been saved for years back, and may be saved for the future by a proper system of training and promotion, but this sum has been thrown into the gaping maw of patronage. Sooner or later the public will learn that administrative economy depends on a civil service, reorganized on the basis of a practical Civil Service Act which must be adhered to, and may not be waived at the request of the government of the day or the demands of some of its adherents.

When public opinion enforces the demand for such conditions the way will immediately be paved, for a considerable number of the province's best young men, to a career in which they may assuredly advance by their own efforts, but, until the public men, actually, if not admitted, are barred from the civil service of British Columbia.

R. ROSS NAPIER,
 Late Departmental Commissioner,
 Province of British Columbia.

ORDERLY COTTON MARKET SOUGHT

Problem of Surplus to Be Considered By Washington

Associated Press
New York, Aug. 9.—Eugene Meyer, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, left for Washington today with the assurance of leading New York bankers they would endeavor to support his effort to stimulate the orderly marketing of surplus cotton now held by the United States Farm Board.

These surplus stocks approximate 3,300,000 bales, of which 1,300,000 are held by the board and 2,000,000 by the co-operative agencies. Their dollar value at present market prices is substantially in excess of $100,000,000.

It is hoped to work out a method whereby banks would finance the mills which, in turn, would contract for substantial amounts of the surplus cotton.

CHARGE DROPPED AGAINST TRAPPER

Harry A. Linburg Freed When Manslaughter Count Is Withdrawn

Harry A. Linburg, Vancouver trapper, detained after the coroner's jury returned a verdict of manslaughter in the case of William Everett Macfarlane, young Chilliwack man, who died on a trapping trip in Vancouver Island wilds, was released from custody yesterday afternoon when the charge against him was withdrawn.

In a brief hearing before James Forman, J.P., in Provincial Police Court, W. H. Bullock-Webster explained that the attorney-general's department would not proceed with the charge. Linburg, he said, had been arrested on a coroner's warrant and under the code this required that he be brought before a justice of the peace and the depositions delivered to him. In accordance with this procedure Linburg was arraigned but the department would not press the charge, he said.

The justice then signed the release order for Linburg.

The circumstances surrounding the death of young Macfarlane were told to the coroner's jury at a prolonged inquest last Tuesday and Thursday. Macfarlane and Linburg went into the woods together from Kookia Sound. They separated and Linburg reached the coast safely but Macfarlane apparently died from starvation, his body being found by a provincial police search party.

Gate-crashers Find Entry Chances Slim

"Mounties" and Secret Service Men Scrutinize Visitors to Ottawa's Parliament Buildings and Only Those With Official Green Cards Can Get In

By Archie Wills, Times Staff Correspondent

Press Gallery, Ottawa, Aug. 9.—The Parliament Buildings are closed to the world with a few exceptions, the delegates to the Imperial Economic Conference, the newspapermen who get passes, the police and employees, who come in side doors.

Gate-crashers haven't the slightest chance of getting a breath of air inside the front door of the buildings. Fellowes of the type of "One-eyed" Connolly, who think that they can crash any gate, don't look like they tried to break through. And I don't think it would avail anyone a great deal if they tried to do what "Monkey" Laird did on the roof of our Parliament Buildings at home.

The spacious grounds around the buildings are for the general public as ever, but that's the limit of the freedom.

MOUNTIES EVERYWHERE

On all corners of the main buildings and the east and west blocks there are members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. They don't look like our "Mounties." They wear the scarlet tunics, but they have long blue trousers, with yellow stripes down the sides and they wear caps. Here are some mounted police that can't ride horses. I think they made a big mistake in not having the real picturesque mounties, you know the boys with the big bushy straight backs, riding breeches and clinking spurs, and those broad-rimmed Stetson hats.

The "mounties" in Ottawa don't have the fine military bearing of our western lads, and you want a bit of a show like this. They have the slow stride of the average policeman, not the fine snapping pace of the horseman.

These "mounties" are fine fellows to talk to. They will give you any information you desire.

When you walk up the driveway to the main building you are conscious of four eyes giving you a very careful scrutiny. These four eyes belong to two members of the protective staff, which is a house organization of police. They are dressed in blue uniforms with a thin red stripe to relieve the monotony and a touch of gold on the shoulder straps and brass buttons.

"Yes, sir," one of them calls as you set your foot on the first step leading up to the front door.

Everyone allowed to enter has a green card, the fact that you flash it is not sufficient. These scrutineers take hold of it and read it to make sure you are not trying to palm off some old green card, the same size that advertises a hairdresser or a new kind of motor oil.

FREEDOM IN BIG LIBRARY

Once inside the buildings you are at liberty to roam wherever you wish, with few exceptions. You cannot go into the conference rooms. The doors are well guarded. The buildings seem almost empty. You can walk the long corridors without meeting anyone.

It is nice to find that you have the library practically to yourself. Anyone coming to Ottawa should make a point of visiting this historic place. It is open to the public when there is no conference. It is all the remains of the original building, which was destroyed by fire in 1917. After walking through the magnificent new structure you seem to go back into a new world, or rather an old one. A quaint passageway with grotesque old iron doors at one end leads into the library, which is circular in shape. All the woodwork is white pine and the numerous hand-carvings on the paneled woodwork are a work of art. The floor is of cherry, walnut and oak blocks, which were somewhat spoiled by the water and frost following the fire, but they have a glistening coat of varnish on them now.

There are over 600,000 volumes in this library and there are three series, with romantic looking bookshelves in tiers arranged like spokes of a wheel. There are stamps and collections of coins and medals that are unrivalled in this country.

And you can revive some of your early schooling by glancing over tablets commemorating battles, and admire the long galleries of paintings of the warlike ancestors and members of parliament who have passed along.

Newspapermen usually begin gathering in the buildings about noon, and half an hour later Hon. R. J. Manion, spokesman for the conference, comes out and reads the communiqués. This performance takes place in one of the Senate rooms, where the deep carpet has been rolled back revealing a flooring of hardwood, laid much after the fashion of the deck of a battleship. It has seams of pitch, but the whole is highly polished, with a surface as smooth as glass.

BUT NEWSPAPERMAN WALK

If you are not fussy about the communique, and there has been little in them so far, you can stand at the entrance to the buildings and watch the delegates go back to their hotels. Each delegation has several brand new limousines at its disposal. The cars are driven by sergeants in the Royal Canadian Air Force, attired in their summer khaki uniforms. As a delegate comes up he announces the number of his car. The constable then shouts towards the area where the cars are parked, and immediately the car rushes up. The delegate is driven to the Chateau Laurier and the car proceeds to a parking area in the middle of Wellington Street, where the driver waits until he is wanted by his delegate again.

That's the way the delegates travel back and forth.

Chinamen Battled Langford Bush Fire

A bush fire started on Mill Mountain about 5 o'clock on Sunday afternoon. Four Chinamen cutting trees nearby fought the outbreak and after working hard to subdue the flames, left guard all night preventing further damage to the heavily timbered mountain.

A similar outbreak occurred last year at almost the identical spot.

WOULD LIMIT INCOME LEVEL

Capt. T. Guy Sheppard Suggests Change in Medium of Wealth

exchange and substitution of the credit state, fixing of a limit for incomes and raising the exemption level on income tax were some of the solutions proposed by Capt. T. Guy Sheppard as a remedy for economic ills at a meeting in the interests of the Government Reform Party in St. Mark's Hall, Saanich, yesterday evening.

When the medium of exchange, gold became a commodity to be bought and sold, its usefulness ended, the speaker said. Work and service were the only true mediums and gold should be removed from the possibility of becoming a commodity.

Capt. Sheppard said the stage had been reached where money taken from men who were working was not sufficient to keep the men who were not working. Wealth should be limited either by direct confiscatory action or conscription. He would limit incomes to $20,000 a year and would exempt all incomes below $5,000 from taxation.

Dr. George Wardell also addressed the meeting, declaring the need for a new system of government. He agreed with the other speaker in his suggestion for changing the medium of exchange. Wealth consisted in what one contributed to the community and not the money a man could make.

Rev. Owen L. Jull presided.

NOT A PAIN AT 78 She Feels Like 48

Aches and pains are not inevitable in old age. When they do come, there is always a cause for them—a cause that can be overcome. Here is a little lesson on growing old, by a woman of 78.

"For the last five years I have taken Kruschen Salts and I tell you truthfully I could not live without them. I am 78 years old. I have not a pain in my body, and I feel as young as I did at 48. I give the credit to Kruschen Salts. No one will believe my age."—(Mrs.) C. M.

Most people grow old long before their time because they neglect one vital need of health—the need for internal cleanliness. Eventually they start the healthy Kruschen habit. Then, probably for the first time in their lives, they start getting rid of every day of all waste matter from the system. And almost immediately they feel their youth has returned; they feel energetic and happy. In a word, they've got that famous "Kruschen Feeling."

BULLS-EYES BY VICTORIA GIRL

Gwen Spencer Shoots Well at Dominion Rifle Meet in Ottawa

One of Only Two Women Competitors; on Way Home From Bisley

Canadian Press
Connaught Ranges, Ottawa, Aug. 8.—The white targets gleam in the sunshine. Beside one of the little white markers which signify bulls-eyes appears frequently. On the ground at the firing line blonde hair blows from beneath a blue hat. Gwen Spencer of Victoria, B.C., is "hanging them up."

Miss Spencer is one of two women who are competing in the match at the Dominion Rifle Association meeting here. She started shooting just a year ago under the eagle-eye of Major Fred Richardson of Victoria, one of the finest marksmen in the Dominion.

She did not do much shooting with the heavy military rifle. Most of her practice came with the .22 calibre arm on the miniature ranges. She accompanied the Bisley team to England this year, and participated in some of the miniature matches there. But en route back to Victoria, she called at Connaught Ranges.

Yesterday was the first of the meet. Miss Spencer entered the Macdougall match, a military rifle affair at 500 to 300 yards.

"How did you make out?" she was asked as the first range was finished. "Possible," she answered briefly. In other words she scored seven successive bulls-eyes, placing every shot in an eighteen-inch circle, 500 yards away.

At 200 yards, a much more difficult range, strangely enough, she scored 33 out of 35.

And plenty of men competitors, including several from the 1932 Bisley team, did not do that much.

The annual midsummer reunion of the Victoria Rifle Club was held last week at Weir's Beach, William Head, the signal for this occasion being the arrival of Mrs. Clifford and her daughter, Miss Hilda, both teachers on the staff of the Coleman Public School, who motored to the Coast. Among the guests were Mrs. E. S. Farr of Victoria College, Mrs. Farr and the Misses Farr, Mr. A. S. Tod and Mrs. Tod of the staff of the George Jay School, Mr. and Mrs. Carver, Mrs. T. Murray of Grande Prairie, and a married daughter, Mrs. L. Fletcher, Mrs. W. P. Hamilton, Mr. P. Wyatt, Mr. M. K. Anderson. Refreshments were served from a prettily decorated table centred with a wedding cake, a gift of Messrs. Rennie and Taylor.

The couple were recipients of many beautiful silver gifts. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. J. Lyon, Mrs. A. McDowell, Mr. and Mrs. J. Ennis, Mr. and Mrs. L. Fletcher, Mr. P. Wyatt, Mr. M. K. Anderson. Refreshments were served from a prettily decorated table centred with a wedding cake, a gift of Messrs. Rennie and Taylor.

VIATRIX AT TRIAL WEEPS

rs. J. M. Keith-Miller Testifies at Lancaster Hearing in Miami

Associated Press
Miami, Fla., Aug. 9.—Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller testified at the murder trial of Capt. W. N. Lancaster yesterday that she had become "completely disillusioned" and no longer loved her husband, the memory of Haden, she said, was still very fond of her, to whom she was once engaged, but she had not loved him for years.

Weren't you a traitor to him, if you have not loved him for two years, then you wrote him constantly of your love while he was on his western trip, getting all the money he could for you?"

Attorney N. Vernon Hawthorne asked.

"You don't understand our situation," she answered.

The Australian aviatrix recalled the stand-to-day after having testified last week as a witness.

The state charges Lancaster killed her, a writer, after the latter had placed him in Mrs. Keith-Miller's fictions.

KEITHS ON STAND
Mrs. Keith-Miller wept on the stand as she attempted to show Hawthorne she could be very fond of Lancaster and still not be in love with him.

She had told Haden many times before they were engaged that she intended to marry anyone, she continued, as she always felt that when Bill would be free from his wife in England, she would marry him.

"Would Lancaster give you any money he had if you needed it?"

"Yes."

"Would he die for you?"

"Yes."

"Lie for you?"

"Bill doesn't lie."

"Steal for you?"

"He doesn't steal."

HICKENS FOR MEALS
"Wouldn't he steal a chicken for you?"

Hawthorne referred to excerpts from Lancaster's diary, in which he wrote of stealing chickens and rabbits with him for the trial.

"Yes, he would do that," she laughed. "Or a rabbit?"

"Or a duck?"

"No-yes, we did have duck once."

The crowd in the court room—larger than on any previous day of the trial—laughed at each response.

Mrs. Keith-Miller testified Haden had a violent temper and frequently was in high rage at his mother and at Peggy Brown, a girl he had brought to the house on several occasions.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

The mother of one or more children does not need to be told that each child in her family cannot be managed exactly the same way. She learns by experience that Simon can be managed by enlisting his co-operation instead of giving orders, but that Susan enjoys being told what to do and is unhappy when thrown on her own.

Eliza wants to show off when company is about and has to be kept helpfully employed for she makes a nuisance of herself, while Donald is willing to sit on the sidelines and just listen, but becomes a bull in the china shop if asked to help.

The mother who understands how to get along with all these various personalities deserves and earns the title of a good mother. The great difficulty in such a situation is that despite the differences in her various children the poor mother is always the same. She, too, is an individual and certain personalities, even those of her own children, grate on her. It is more than probable that the children in her family who are most like her are the hardest for her to manage. She may not stop to enquire why, but she knows that their particular tendencies offend and distress her the most.

THE YOUNGEST CHILD
In many cases the child's position as youngest or middle child causes trouble. Mrs. F. V. has three children, only one of whom she considers a problem.

"My two oldest girls are easily managed and very lovable children," she writes. "They are ten and twelve. My youngest, a boy of six, is rapidly becoming incorrigible. He is obstinate, demanding and bad tempered. He hangs on me all day long and can hardly be pried loose. He is a cry baby anything goes wrong when playing with other children. He occasionally wets his pants in daytime and almost always wets the bed at night. This makes me very angry and I have been compelled to spank him though I have to admit it hasn't seemed to have much effect. I can't imagine why he should act this way. I've never had any trouble with the girls."

This boy has a much more difficult role to play in the family than your daughters had. He is almost forced to remain a baby in order to retain the attention of the family. It is possible that you can give him a greater feeling of security by increasing responsibility.

With two older daughters there is probably little for the boy to do, so that he feels at loose ends and not a comfortable part of the family circle. This invariably leads to those dependent NEVER COMPARE CHILDREN.

Ignore the wetting both daytime and night, other than to tell him that he needs to try harder. Expect him to help you when he is in the house instead of just fastening himself upon you. Keep him busy or else see that he goes outside.

Give little attention to his crying spells, just suggest that he go back to his mother and he'll be all right. I should express your affection for him more openly and avoid all criticism which takes the form of, "Your sisters never did that."

Let him realize that he is an important and well-loved member of the family. He will not then be driven to such juvenile behavior as to establish himself in a position. For further information in "Bed Wetting" and "Retraining in Cleanly Habits," I suggest you send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope for those leaflets by the above titles.

To-morrow: "Appetiteless Babies."

Glorifying Yourself
By ALICIA HART

You may face the sun without any fear that the heat rays will penetrate your sunburn cream, and your waistline may be so slim that even your grandmother would approve, but be careful that you don't spoil the whole effect when you open your mouth.

Every once in a while somebody quotes the old line of the woman whose voice was low and gentle—and sings a little. But just the same the clamor of present day voices is spoiling more than one girl's charm. When the beauty pageant comes to life the scene is upset.

Voices, to be lovely, must be full and vibrant, warm with color. They must not be shrill. Nature's too many of them sound like whistles blowing for the start of a race. They must not be hoarse. Many of them are like food that hasn't been seasoned. They should not be thin.

First of all, in placing your words, remember that you are going more than communicating words. You are bringing musical notes into the picture, or else taking them away. The manner in which you say what you want to say can make it interesting whether you are talking about canning gooseberries or the moon's roundness. So be interested in what you are saying.

Sit down and say a sentence or a rhyme. Take your voice apart and analyze it. Notice whether you let the words fall like so many bricks at the end of the thought—or whether you slide up the scale as though you weren't really finished. Did you put emphasis where you wanted it? Did you run out of breath before you were through? Did you carefully pronounce every consonant? When a word ended with a "t" did you say that "t" or slip over it?

Stuttering words takes beauty away from the voice. Talking too rapidly is tiresome, both for you and your listener.

Men would much rather carry the conversational burden—if you are skillful enough to get it in their hands. But when you do, concentrate on your voice and make it worth the listening—or mouths. So don't talk too much.

Guests registered at the Forest Inn, Shawanigan Lake, include: Mrs. James C. Weston, Miss Pearl Weston, Miss Vera O. W. Bell, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Blackie, Mrs. E. L. NOTED SINGER DIES IN EAST

Alfred Heather of C.P.R. Broadcasts Succumbs of Heart Failure; Known Here

Toronto, Aug. 9.—Alfred Heather, well-known singer, and for two years connected with the radio broadcasts of the Canadian Pacific Railway, died suddenly yesterday as the result of heart failure at his home here. For some years a member of Westminster Abbey choir, he came to Toronto in 1922 with the "Beggars' Opera" Company.

The late Alfred Heather, as he appeared in "The Beggars' Opera."

Mr. Heather had been engaged in the preparation of the stage version of "Hiawatha," to be sung by the pageant choir at the Canadian National exhibition this month. Formerly leading tenor in the Westminster Abbey choir, Mr. Heather sang with the Beecham Opera Company and had toured this continent on several occasions with the "Beggars' Opera" Company. He was very well known here, both as a singer and teacher, and also gained a reputation for his operatic productions of "Hugh the Drover" at the English festival staged by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company at the Royal York Hotel here in 1929. Mr. Heather also organized the Musical Crusaders as a Canadian-Pacific enterprise—broadcasts, and in July, 1931, directed the Musical Crusaders in their broadcast from the Banff Springs Hotel over a Canadian network.

Mr. Heather was well known in Victoria, he having for several years directed and sang in the Yuletide Festivals, which have been a Christmas feature at the Empress Hotel, and also appeared in other musical features staged at the hotel.

HUNDREDS AT MOOSE PICNIC

Bright Programme at Gorge Carried Out With Success

The Loyal Order of Moose staged a most successful picnic at the Gorge last Sunday, some 400 members and their families attending. As usual, the children had all the free ice cream they could eat and enjoyed themselves thoroughly with the programme of races and water sports put on by the committee in charge.

The tug-of-war was the feature of the occasion, the Moose ladies losing after a good punt to the all-damns' team. The men were more successful, winning two straight pulls over the all-comers.

Following the races an exhibition of life-saving and fancy swimming was put on by W. T. Stanyon. He delighted the large crowd present with the demonstration of spinning the top, imitation of a submarine, pendulum floating, motionless floating, waltzing and water wheeling, which brought rounds of applause.

The coconut shie proved a great attraction as always. The following committee had charge of the arrangements: G. Allan, J. Johnston, W. D. Taylor, L. W. Cox and others.

CRITICS CAUSTIC ON SHAW PLAY

London, Aug. 9.—George Bernard Shaw's new play, "Too True to Be Good," was produced at Malvern Festival on Saturday. It has encountered a lukewarm reception from the London press critics, who may be slightly jaundiced in the matter because their airplane lost its way and the critics' entrance to the theatre came in the middle of the first act, which had started forty minutes late.

"The play is at least ten years old as a picture of muddled reaction from war horrors," is one judgment. Another critic, more favorably inclined to the quality of Shaw's sermonizing, nevertheless declares the author permitted himself jests of unusual cheapness and occasional startling coarseness.

"Too True to Be Good" had already been produced in the United States, where it was severely criticized by several press critics.

Adverse criticisms gave the veteran playwright a Shavian laugh to-day. "As usual," he said, "the majority of the critics have not been equal to the occasion. It cannot help being about fifty years ahead of them."

Whether it be on the porch, in the garden, at the bridge table or with a "dish of gossip" and an intimate friend, a cool drink served as if by magic is an achievement for the summer hostess.

When preparing drinks for expected guests the fruit juices and syrup can be mixed hours before wanted and kept on ice. The tray and glasses and cookies or sandwiches can be arranged so that the last-minute effort creates little stir to disturb the visitors.

But when the chance guest drops in and a quick and apparently effortless bit of refreshment is wanted, the hostess who is totally without preparation is "out of luck."

To this end the foresighted homemaker keeps a few simple expedients in her refrigerator. A jar of sugar syrup, a bottle of chocolate syrup and one or two varieties of fruit juices make it possible to concoct "delicious" beverages with regular soda-fountain speed.

Another secret in making quick iced drinks is in using finely chopped ice. Ice water is used when making the beverage because the fine ice melts and dilutes the drink as it chills it.

SUGAR SYRUP
To make sugar syrup put one cup of sugar and one-half cup water into a smooth saucepan. Put over medium heat and bring to the boiling point. Cover and let boil five minutes. One to two tablespoons of this syrup to a glass will make the average drink sweet enough. Two tablespoons grated lemon rind can be cooked with the syrup. Strain syrup before bottling. This lemon syrup is especially good with iced tea or a fruit punch.

LEMON SYRUP
A concentrated lemon syrup which can be diluted and used with iced tea for tea punch or charged water for lemon fizz is made as follows:

Three cups sugar, 3 cups water, 3 cups lemon juice, grated rind of lemons, used for juice. Combine sugar, water and grated lemon rind. Bring to the boiling point. Cover and boil fifteen minutes. Add lemon juice, cover and bring to the boiling point. Strain into sterilized jars and seal.

Any fruit juice can be used. The juice may be obtained from small fruits by crushing and straining through cheese cloth.

TO-MORROW'S MENU
Breakfast: Sliced peaches with cereal and cream, shirred eggs, oven toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon: Jelly vegetable salad, brown bread and sandwiches, cantaloupe filled with peaches and raspberries, iced chocolate.

Dinner: Sauerkraut and tomato

YOUR CHILDREN
By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
© 1930 BY NEA SERVICE

A young mother complained to me recently about many things.

"It is very discouraging to bring up babies these days," she said. "My goodness! Every time I forget to fill an empty bottle on the instant with cold water, or the lid is off the nipple jar, or the baby grabs something that isn't sterilized and puts it into his mouth, I feel like a criminal."

And she went on to mention another article of mine about older babies in which I advised putting everything possible out of reach. Also another in which I had suggested that the dishes out of which little people eat their meals be scalded or boiled once a day.

"Dear me!" I cried in instant alarm. "I hope I haven't given several thousand women the blues, not even the palest shade of baby blues. I was merely trying to inform them about safeguards. There has to be a standard for everything. You know, a starting point, something to work from, or toward."

"Then you don't expect mothers to live up to the letter?"

"How can they if they do their own work and take care of their own babies? I did it, I know how many steps there are in a day, how arms have to fly and brains have to plan."

"But there is no harm in knowing how things should be done if the children are to stay as well as they should. To do everything every day in every way perfectly, keep a ham going, and everybody happy, it would take several people, including an experienced nurse."

"I am so relieved!" she sighed. "I really do the best I can. I try hard to have the baby's things just right and little Roy's things, too. I don't sleep up often, but it does happen sometimes, just as I said."

IT PAYS TO BE CONSCIENTIOUS
"Any mother that is as conscientious as you are, my dear, will have healthy babies. These suggestions and rules of mine are not intended to discourage such as you. But you see there are many young mothers starting from scratch who have not the least idea of how to safeguard a little beginner and it is better to let them know about certain things."

"I mentioned putting things away because I had a very sad experience one time myself when I was a young mother about something I had not put out of sight. It was too sad for me even to tell you about it now."

"And I advised scalding or boiling the children's dishes and to keep them apart, because one of the most severe cases of intestinal infection one of my babies ever had was transmitted, I know, from her father, who was in

by Laura Lou BROOKMAN

"But, Dan, you don't mean this!"
Brenda Vail had risen. She was dressed in black velvet and out of the shadows her face looked very white. The outline of her rouged lips was like a double heart.
"You don't mean you're going to forget about me? You don't mean you're not coming to see me?"
"I haven't the right!" Phillips protested huskily. "I have to think of someone else, Brenda. Things can't go on this way. I tell you, I can't stand it!"

The woman's voice dropped to lower pitch. "I know," she whispered. "It's been hard for me, too. Oh, Dan—"

She was in his arms then and Phillips was kissing her.

CHAPTER XII

Cherry sat in the window seat and looked out at the only tree in sight. Some of its leaves had blown to the ground but those that remained were bright yellow. They danced in the sunlight, the very emblem of carefree gaiety.

Cherry did not even see the dancing leaves though she was staring at them. There were very vertical lines between Cherry's brown eyes. The eyes were brooding and serious now. Cherry's lips pressed together in an anxious line. She was struggling with the most difficult problem she had ever faced.

The situation was terrifying. She had felt it daily for the past week. The thing that frightened her was nothing you could put your finger on and say, "This is wrong. We'll correct it." It was something intangible. Something Cherry was powerless to combat because she could not even name it.

In some way a barrier had risen between herself and Dan. She could not see over this barrier or around it. Dan was on one side and she on the other. There had been no more quarreling between them. Ever since the night of the argument about the house cleaning Dan had been meticulously polite. He left the house early each morning and usually arrived late at night. When he came home for dinner he departed almost immediately.

Cherry was too proud to inquire how he was spending his time.

She went about the housework, cooked the food he liked, made herself attractive for the hour when he arrived—and would have died rather than let him know how she was suffering.

It had been five days now since that dreadful night.

"It was my fault—partly," Cherry told herself for the thousandth time. "I shouldn't have let myself get so tired and nervous and I shouldn't have complained about the work."

But there was the matter of pride, too. If Dan had made the slightest move toward reconciliation Cherry would have met the venture halfway. He hadn't—and therefore affairs were as they stood.

Suddenly Cherry got to her feet. "This won't do!" she scolded. "There's no use sitting here worrying. I'm a little fool to imagine a lot of things that aren't true. Probably that's the whole trouble—I've been letting my imagination get the best of me. Now I'm going to quit it!"

For the rest of that day she was determinedly cheerful. It was not easy but when doubts arose Cherry closed her mind to them. Moreover she outlined a course of action. Something was to happen within two days that she felt would restore her happiness.

"I won't tell Dan!" she thought. "I'll surprise him."

Cherry said casually at dinner that evening, "I've some shopping to do Saturday. Suppose I come down about 12:30 and have lunch with you. Will that be all right?"

Dan did not glance up from the newspaper beside his plate. He said, "Yes, I guess so."

"I'll meet you in front of the library," Cherry promised. "I'll be there at 12:30."

OUT OUR WAY

OH HOH! THEY'VE FOUND HIM AT LAST! LOOKIT HIM ATVIN' TO BREAK TH' NEWS GENTLY TO HISSELF. THEM LAWYERS IS AWFUL PERSISTENT—THEM ALMONY ONES.

THE BURIED PAST

The young man nodded agreement. He did not leave the apartment as usual after dinner but flung himself down on the davenport with a new book. Cherry felt this was encouraging.

She was happy as she went about clearing the dishes from the table and washing them and putting them away, taking care to be quiet so as not to disturb Dan.

"Everything's going to be all right," she assured herself. "I'm sure of it!" But there was disappointment ahead. Dan did not come home for dinner the following evening. Cherry would not let this make her downcast, however. She was pinning her faith on her plans for Saturday.

She intended to remind Dan in the morning that she was to meet him at noon. She meant to speak of it the last thing before he left the apartment but somehow he was gone before she realized it.

At eleven o'clock she telephoned the office but Dan was not there.

"It doesn't matter," Cherry assured herself. "Dan never forgets anything." It was true that his memory was unusual.

While she dressed she planned how to break the news. They would go to Stanley's for lunch. It wasn't terribly expensive and besides this was a special occasion. While Dan was reading the menu she would say, "I'd like that special cream for dessert."

Stanley's special they call it. It's appropriate to-day.

Dan would be sure to ask what she meant and then Cherry would say, "Why, dear, have you forgotten? It's our anniversary. We've been married six months to-day!"

That was the surprise she had in store. The anniversary was exactly what was needed to end this foolish misunderstanding. After that Dan could speak without fear of sacrificing his pride. They would recall memories together. He would tell her how happy he had been during those six months.

Cherry's thoughts drifted. The important thing was to let Dan know she wasn't angry with him, to give him a chance to tell her he had been miserable these last few days as she had been.

She leaned and patted on the delicately scented bath powder that was her dearest luxury. She got into brief, lacy undergarments, new hose and her best pumps. As she touched her cheeks with the pink pad from her rouge box Cherry was as careful as she had ever been when dressing for an engagement with Dan before their marriage. She made her mouth into a vivid rosebud with lipstick.

She put on a brown frock, adjusted the little hat smartly and slipped into her polo coat. A bright scarf relieved the sombre monotone. Cherry took a last glance into the mirror. Her eyes glowed with anticipation. Yes, she was satisfied with her appearance. If she met anyone she knew at Stanley's she need not feel ashamed.

The ride down town on the trolley required only fifteen minutes but Cherry allowed herself more than that. She left the house promptly at twelve o'clock and twenty minutes later had reached the library. Naturally Dan was not in sight. He would probably be late.

Cherry walked leisurely along the block. The day was colder than she had realized and she pulled the collar of her coat snugly about her throat. A woman wearing a handsome mink wrap passed and Cherry thought ruefully of the beaver coat that had been a gift on her last birthday. The coat was in storage and if Mrs. Dixon had been at home she would probably have insisted on Cherry wearing it. Cherry promptly forgot about the fur coat.

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggly Falls Down

(By HOWARD R. GARIS.)

The jolly old rabbit gentleman was riding in his clothes basket airship with the toy circus balloons one day when, all of a sudden, a flock of little robin birds flew at the balloons thinking to pick them with their sharp beaks to see if they were apples or oranges.

"Oh, but you mustn't do that!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggly, for well he knew what would happen if many of the balloons burst. He would fall down. Even though he sat on a pile of sofa cushions, he might be hurt.

"Don't pick my balloons!" he begged the birds.

"You say they are balloons, but they look like apples to me!" laughed a little robin girl.

"More like oranges!" twittered her brother.

Straight at the balloons flew the birds. Uncle Wiggly made his electric fan go faster, thinking he could get away from the mischievous little tykes, who, though they meant no harm, might damage the airship. But the robins flew as fast as Uncle Wiggly could sail on his sky ride and they easily kept up to him.

"Bang!" suddenly sounded.

"There goes one balloon!" murmured Mr. Longears.

"Oh! Oh!" tweaked the little robin girl who had thrust her beak into a red gas bag. "Oh! Oh!"

"I told you they were oranges," cried a boy robin. "Watch me take a bite of one," and he flew at a yellow balloon which, truth to tell, did look like a big orange.

"Oh, don't!" cried Uncle Wiggly. "Please stop bursting my balloons, my dear little robins; you'll make me fall!"

"Bang!" went the yellow gas bag as the boy robin thrust his beak into it. "Oh! Oh!" he cried, for the gas with which the yellow balloon was filled, rushed out so suddenly that it blew him head over tail in the air and the robin turned a somersault.

"Was it an orange?" asked one of his sisters who, ruffled feathers he flew back to join the others who were chasing Uncle Wiggly's airship.

"No it was more like a firecracker," answered the boy robin. "I guess I don't want to eat anymore."

"I will," said the sister of the girl robin who had thought a red balloon was an apple. "I'm going to try that purple one. It may be a big grape. Here I come!" She swished at the airship and Uncle Wiggly shouted:

"Oh, please stop! Two balloons are burst now and if you puncture any more I'll surely fall down, down, down!"

But the little robin, who thought the purple balloon was like a grape, was so excited that she didn't hear what the rabbit gentleman said. At the purple gas bag she darted.

"Bang!" it exploded and blew her off and away in two somersaults.

"Oh! Oh!" she twittered. "Another firecracker!"

"Here I go down!" cried Uncle Wiggly. "Surely enough so many of my balloons had burst that I couldn't save them!"

Down! down! down! fell poor Uncle Wiggly. He hoped he had enough sofa cushions so that his fall would be softened.

"But you never can be sure!" he said to himself as he looked over the edge of the basket and saw how far down and away the earth was. "I might fall into a Christmas tree and that wouldn't be quite so hard."

All of a sudden, when Uncle Wiggly was getting close to the ground and could see no Christmas tree into which he might fall, he heard another swishing of wings.

"I hope it isn't those mischievous robins coming back to pick holes in what the rabbit gentleman thought Mr. Longears. He looked around. Then he felt quite worried, for he saw a flock of birds soaring toward him. Among them he saw some of the little robins.

"If they puncture any more balloons I'll fall down so fast that all the sofa cushions in the world and all the Christmas trees will not save me!" murmured Mr. Longears. "Oh, what shall I do!" On came the flying birds, chipping, chirping and cheeping. But do not worry. Everything is going to be just fine. And if the sugar bowl will put some chocolate frosting on a rain drop to make it look like candy, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggly's Christmas tree.

Adventures of the Sea

XVII—ROBERTA SEES LAND

What are you doing, grandpa?" Roberta and Allen had come to the captain's cabin and had found him looking at a map.

"I am trying to figure out how far away we are from the island," he replied.

"Is it very far?"

"No, it ought not to be more than fifty miles from here."

Four hours later, Captain Thompson was engaged in earnest talk with Dr. Barstow and Mr. Weston.

"The island ought to be right out there," said the captain, pointing toward the sea. "But it isn't there! Something is wrong!"

"Have you checked up again on the instruments?" asked Dr. Barstow.

"Yes, First Mate Brown has done that, very carefully. We should be in the right place, but there is no island to be seen."

"Do not fret over it, captain," said Dr. Barstow with a kindly smile. "The figures you saved from your first visit to the island may be a little out of the way. Perhaps we shall locate the island by cruising around for the next day or so."

Mr. Weston thought that perhaps the island had sunk beneath the water; but he said nothing about the possibility, because he did not want the captain to worry in advance. Very likely the island was still above the waves, and would be found after the "Sister Sue" had cruised about for a while.

Evening came, but still with no sight of the island. Allen and Roberta saw that their grandfather was worried, and they cheered him as much as they could.

Next morning, bright and early, a little girl might have been seen climbing to the deck. She was carrying a pair of field glasses in her hands. Going to the side of the boat, she raised the field glasses and looked westward. Then she looked toward the

Bob Morrison Has Total Of 155 To Lead Coast Squad

Victoria Player Checks in With Rounds of 78 and 77 in Thirty-six-hole Test Over Lambton Course at Toronto; Ken Black, Stan Leonard and Jimmy Bell, All of Vancouver, Other Qualifiers; Jack Matson in Play-off for Qualifying Place; Joe Thompson, Toronto, Is Medalist With 147

Lambton Golf Club, Toronto, Aug. 9.—Survivors of a sensational qualifying-round fight, thirty-two sterling club swingers who emerged by steady play from an original field of 136, continued along Lambton's bunker-strewn path to-day toward the Canadian amateur golf title. The day's fray was at thirty-six holes of match play, an elimination that will continue until but two are left to meet in the final next Saturday.

Beaming access after lifting the qualifying medal Monday with rounds of 75-72, little Joe Thompson, Toronto, this morning took on a boy three years his junior, Bobby Reith, Winnipeg. The latter, holder of seventeen of the Manitoba amateur and open championships, was not on top of his game in the qualifying struggle, but his 77 in the afternoon was a marked improvement over a morning 81, and the medalist will likely have to repeat his first day's display to hold the westerner in bounds.

British Columbia placed four par-busters in the fight. Bob Morrison, Victoria, and a trio from Vancouver, Ken Leonard, J. Bell and Ken Black, carry the Pacific Coast challenge. Jack Matson, Victoria veteran, was among the 159 shooters and engaged in a play-off with six others for the right to qualify.

Scores of the Coast players were: Morrison, 78-77-155; Black, 75-81-156; Leonard, 82-75-157; Bell, 78-90-158; Matson, 75-84-159.

C. Ross Sandy Somerville, defending champion from last year, was the only player with the Ottawa district titleholder, Frank Corrigan. The latter, who is eighteen, but has been swinging golf clubs for a decade, shot a steady round of 75-80 Monday. Sandy was five strokes better with 80-73.

Of the thirty-two who went into action this morning, only half of that number will emerge. Cards of 158 or better were the home-made district titleholders Monday; seven shot 159 and they met early this morning in a play-off to decide the two who will move up to fill out the match-play bracket.

A seasoned campaigner and another like Thompson stood second and third at the end of the day. Fred G. Holtzler, playing over his home course, completed steady tally of 74-75, the latter mostly in gathering darkness, to wind up behind the leaders. Phil Farley, Toronto, was third with 74-76.

SOMERVILLE RALLIES
But the defending champion, C. R. "Sandy" Somerville, from London, did not let the defeat after the first round steal the show. A disastrous morning card of 80 left Sandy tottering on his throne. His best effort on the out-going par-thirty hole, and birdies as the afternoon round was 38 and his chances of advancing into the match play elimination rounds brightened up little. The struggling champion bent on clicking out birdies and birdies as the rain fell and the wind changed with trigger quickness. Two birdies, six pars and a single one-stroke error over perfect figures on the home-made district titleholder's nine-hole course, gave Sandy a nine-hole count of 37 within the circle of thirty-two qualifiers with 80-73.

Dr. O'Callaghan Sprains a Thumb
Los Angeles, Aug. 9.—Dr. Patrick O'Callaghan, Ireland's colorful all-around athlete and two-time Olympic hammer-throwing champion, yesterday exhibited a badly sprained right thumb to explain his withdrawal from the Olympic boxing championships. "I got this spraining with just a middleweight," the big Irishman complained. "It also kept me out of the decathlon, in which I think I could have placed at least among the first four."

Dr. O'Callaghan, offered a committee post for Ireland by the International Amateur Athletic Federation, declined with thanks, saying he had "too many other things to do."

Poland's sensational distance runner, Janusz Kuscinski, is shown in this picture as he sprinted to the tape in Olympic stadium, Los Angeles, for a new record in the 10,000 metres. In the time of 30 minutes, 11.4 seconds, he shattered the mark of Paavo Nurmi and led by ten yards the best of the two Finnish runners who here are shown trailing him.

CANADIAN YACHTS ARE WELL UP AT OLYMPICS

San Pedro, Calif., Aug. 9.—Consistently outstanding performers held to places in their divisions of Olympic yacht racing to-day as boatmen of eleven nations entered the fifth or seventh round of sailing.

The United States holds the first Olympic sailing title in ever won by virtue of the fourth consecutive victory yesterday of the trim eight-meter ketch Angela over its lone competitor, Santa Maria of Canada.

Only one more triumph remained between the Swedish boat Bisbi and the title in the six-meter division. The sensational Yankee star boat sailor, Gilbert Gray, New Orleans, was the favorite in his class. Jan Maas had kept Holland in the lead in monotype competition.

Although the Angela, title is not officially final, Ronald Matland, skipper of the Canadian boat, Santa Maria, conceded the championship to Commodore Owen Churchill of Los Angeles. Three straight victories for the remainder of the series would give the remainder of the series would give

Score 99 Out of 100 in Bankers' Match; Gwen Spencer Well Up Yesterday

Connaught Ranges, Ottawa, Aug. 9.—Firing in decidedly tricky weather conditions, Lieutenant R. Sweet, Hamilton, and Corporal L. Vaines, Montreal, scored 99 out of a possible 100, to tie for first place in the Bankers' match at the Dominion Rifle Association meeting here 10-25.

The first range of the match, 300 yards, was fired yesterday, with the marksmen finishing up at 600 yards to-day. Both Sweet and Vaines had scored possible at the first range, and finished up with one point short of the perfect score.

Behind the leaders came nine other marksmen with 98 and eight more with scores of 97.

Corpl. L. C. Willoughby, Victoria, 98. Lieut. G. A. McClellan, Winnipeg, 98. Lieut. W. Worsick, Winnipeg, 98. CSM. C. Hearn, Vancouver, 97. Major J. H. Cathcart, Winnipeg, 96. Pte. S. M. Grant, Victoria, 96. Cadet R. D. McLeod, St. John, 96. Sergt. F. V. Shepherd, Ottawa, 96. Sergt. E. G. Stock, Toronto, all scored double possibilities in the Macdougall Challenge Cup yesterday, and will shoot off. Behind the three came an impossible list of marksmen who had scored possible at one or other of the two ranges fired.

MISS SPENCER WELL UP
Two points behind them came Miss Gwen Spencer, Victoria, B.C., one of the two women competitors this year. She had a perfect score at 500 yards, but dropped two points at the 200-yard range. Capt. D. Fyvie, Victoria, had a 69, dropping one point on the 300-yard range. Q.M.S. A. E. Evans, Esquimalt, B.C., scored a 68.

To the Victoria Rifles, Montreal, sent the Senator McDonald Trophy. Their team aggregate of 133 was just one point above that of the north St. John cadets of New Brunswick.

TILlicUMS DOWN ELKS

Clubmen Retain Play-off Chances in Senior League By 4 to 0 Victory

Elks Turn in Another Spotty Exhibition; Musgrave Is Winning Pitcher

Tillicums sprang another surprise in the Senior Amateur Baseball League yesterday evening at the Royal Athletic Park when they took the Elks into camp for the third time this season, 4 to 0. By their victory the clubmen retained a slim chance of getting into the league play-offs.

The Elks, who have been playing erratic ball all season, had another of their off nights, and although Lloyd Jones held the Tillicums to three hits, the outfielder committed enough errors to lose the game.

Tommy Musgrave hurried for the Tillicums and the Elks were only able to garner five hits off him, two of which were secured by Jack McKenzie, Elks' shortstop. The former walked one while Jones gave three free passages to first.

The Tillicums secured a one-run lead in the second inning and in the third pushed three more runners across the plate on one hit, errors assisting them in no small way.

This ended the scoring for the game, which was called in the seventh on account of darkness.

Ten World Records Are Put On Books

International Amateur Athletic Federation Approves New Olympic Marks

Eight Credited to Athletes From the U.S.; New Timing Device Accepted

Los Angeles, Aug. 9.—Ten world record performances which marked the Olympic track and field championships, yesterday were stamped with official approval and put on the books by the International Amateur Athletic Federation. Eight were credited to United States athletes, one each to Japan and Great Britain.

Two other world records, made last June by Polish stars, also were approved, increasing to fifty-three the total number of new marks accepted by the Federation here, covering the last two years of extraordinary athletic accomplishments.

Meanwhile, the federation approved the supplementary use of the electro-photographic or camera clock, sponsored by Gustavus T. Kirby, New York, and used during the Olympics to settle several disputed points. This device records by hundreds of a second, and its figures on the time of races, the federation decided, may be considered for competitive purposes with hand timing. The federation, however, reaffirmed its decision to accept tenth-second timing only for races up to and including 1,000 metres.

NEW MARKS APPROVED

The Olympic performances put into the world record list:

100 metres, 10.3 seconds, by Eddie Tolain, United States (equals previous mark).
400 metres, 46.2 seconds, by William Carr, United States.
800 metres, 1.49.08, by Thomas Hampton, Great Britain.
400-metre relay, 40 seconds, by United States team.
1,600-metre relay, 3:08.02, by United States team.
110-metre hurdles, 14.4 seconds, by George Salinger, United States (equals).
400-metre hurdles, 52 seconds, by Glenn Hardin, United States (equals).
Hop, step and jump 51 feet 7 inches, by Chubel Nambu, Japan.
Five mile vault, 14 feet 1 1/2 inches, by William Miller, United States.
Decathlon, 8,492.235 points, by James Bausch, United States.
Other world records approved:
Four miles, 19:08.6, by James Kuschinski, Poland.
Shot put, 62 feet 6 inches, by Zygmunt Heljasz, Poland.

SPROAT LAKE HOLDS REGATTA

Record Crowd Attended Seventh Annual Motorboat Competitions Saturday

Special to The Times
Port Alberni, Aug. 9.—Perfect racing conditions obtained on Saturday for the seventh annual motorboat regatta at Bishop's Landing, Sproat Lake. There was a record crowd in attendance. Entries were on hand from Chemainus, Nanaimo, Courtenay and Alberni, and some of the fastest times ever made over the one and one-quarter-mile course were recorded as the speedy outboard flared past the starter's stand.

The only accident happened when Doug Stone upset his Golden Arrow II while turning at close to forty miles an hour. He was thrown clear and unhurt but some water got in the engine and when he started in another race a cracked cylinder head developed. Stone's boat was considered the fastest on the course and a sure winner.

The events and winners were:
Utility boats for A. P. Priddyham Cup—J. F. Bishop; 2, P. R. Lock.
Class B outboard hydroplanes, for Bishop Challenge Cup—J. H. P. Nightingale; 2, Percy Stone.
Unlimited power service runabouts for Boeving Cup—J. Gil Clarke, Chemainus; 2, Gordon Bryant, Courtenay.

Class C service hydroplanes for Kiltich Challenge Cup—J. H. P. Nightingale; 2, Bryant of Courtenay.
Class C racing hydroplanes for Alberni Athletic Cup—J. Hynek of Nanaimo.
Class D racing hydroplanes for Sproat Lake Challenge Cup—J. Hynek of Nanaimo.

Swimming races and diving competitions were held during the afternoon and created much excitement for the spectators lining the shores. In the evening a well attended dance was held in the Sproat Lake Pavilion.

Young Washington Rookie Scores Eighteenth Victory in Major Baseball

St. Louis Cardinals Capture Two Games From Phillies 7 to 6 and 6 to 4

Walter Johnson perhaps has few visions now of winning an American League pennant with his Washington Senators this season, but at least he has uncovered the most effective rookie in the circuit.

Monte M. Weaver, who quit mathematical calculations to cast his lot with baseball, now leads both leagues in games won and lost with eighteen victories and only five defeats. Weaver, chalked up his eighteenth victory yesterday at the expense of the Cleveland Indians, 7 to 6.

The only other clubs in action were the St. Louis Cardinals and Phillies. The Cards won two games, 7 to 6 and 6 to 4, in eleven innings. The Phillies, as a result, dropped into fifth place in the National League.

That shift in Albany evidently has installed new life into what used to be the Reading International League Club since the franchise was moved to the New York state capital, and the team managed to defeat the Phillies, as Rowland's club had won three consecutive games from the second place Buffalo Bisons and tightened its grip on sixth place in the standings.

Yesterday evening the Senators trounced the Bisons, 7 to 0. Rain forced postponement of the night game between Baltimore and Montreal, after which clubs had played three innings. Baltimore, however, benefited, gaining a tie for second place as a result of Buffalo's defeat.

All four other league clubs had an off-day.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Philadelphia, Aug. 9.—The Phillies' pennant hopes were given another jolt yesterday when they dropped two games to St. Louis Cardinals for the fourth successive defeat. The world champions won the opener 7 to 6 and then took the nightcap 6 to 4 in eleven innings.

Two three-run rallies, one in the eighth and the other in the ninth, wiped out a 6 to 1 lead established by the Phillies in the seventh to give the Cards the first game. Jimmy Rollins, batting eighth, hit a home run with Jim Bottomley on base in the eleventh provided the winning margin in the second encounter.

First game—
Philadelphia..... 6 5 2
Batteries—Johnson, Carleton and Mancuso; Hansen, P. Collins, J. Elliott, Beverly and V. Davis.
Second game—
St. Louis..... 6 12 2
Philadelphia..... 4 8 3
Batteries—Derringer and Marcus; J. E. Furd, Bell and Adams.
Only games scheduled.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Cleveland, Aug. 9.—Slipshod work again by the Indians cost them a defeat in their last seven series yesterday. Washington scoring a 7 to 6 victory on only five hits. The defeat sent Cleveland back to third place, a half game behind the idle Philadelphia Athletics.

Monte Weaver got credit for his eighteen victory of the season against five defeats, although the tribe batted him out of the box in an eight-inning rally that fell just one run short of tying the score.
R. H. E. Washington..... 7 5 1
Cleveland..... 6 12 2
Batteries—Weaver, Crowder and Berg; Hildebrand, Connally, Brown and Sewell, Myatt.
Boston at Detroit, postponed; wet grounds. Two games scheduled.

Wheat Prices Dip Under Strong Wave Of Profit-taking

Winnipeg, Aug. 9.—Wheat prices dipped today in a mammoth movement to realize profits. Continued absence of export purchases and eagerness of traders, both here and at Chicago, to "cash in" at the high points put the skids under the market near the close. Values at the close were 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 a bushel lower than yesterday's finish.

October declined 1 1/2 to 60 with December and May each down 1 1/2 to 61 1/2 and 62 1/2, respectively.

The wave of profit-taking came in the last hour and brought the market back to price levels of a week ago. Chicago "longs" led the way with locals following on.

Advices from abroad intimated that millers had ceased in their purchases, not being inclined to follow the rising prices and this had the effect of sending Liverpool wheat down 1/4 d per 100 pounds.

A feature of foreign news was the higher prices for Russian wheat. Argentine wheat, the former quoting a c.i.f. price that was only 1/2 c per bushel under the price asked for No. 2 northern out of Vancouver.

Cash prospects in these two countries appear to be worrying shippers and offerings are being made very sparingly. A visitation of locusts is reported in northern Argentina, which have not followed the advice abroad.

With the exception of fractionally higher spreads for No. 1 and 2 northern, cash wheat sales were of little account. Coarse grains were dull and unimportant.

To-day's Grain Markets

WINNIPEG

(By Logan & Bryan)

Winnipeg, Aug. 9.—Wheat displayed a reactionary tendency today, with considerable liquidation going on, part of which was for New York, and prices declined about 2c from Monday's close, and getting down into the daily bids. Liverpool started the trend downward with early cables about 1/4 c lower when due higher.

Export business was again quiet, although there was some scattered sales of Manitoba, Chicago broke about the same as Winnipeg and led the decline down. There was a little buying for continental account at the start, but the volume was small, after which the market trend was in a decline, with little of feature going on, a little better support showing up after the market reached the big prices.

In the cash market there was a fair demand for the grades from shippers, and spreads on these were 1/2 to 1 1/2 c better, while others were unchanged. Offerings of cash wheat are still light, although there is plenty at the head of the lake and owned by terminals, mostly, who appear to want the carrying charge.

The weather in the west continues clear, with some rather high temperatures. Some threshing returns from southern Saskatchewan show that the crop in that district, at least, has deteriorated during the last month, and yields are about half to what was expected. However, generally speaking, the crop is a good one, with estimates running around 400,000,000 bushels. Wheat prices have had quiet, but recently, largely on speculative buying, and some reaction is only natural, but do not look for any serious setback at the present time.

Country marketings in the west on Monday were 172,000 bushels, against 115,000 a year ago. Winnipeg futures closed 1 1/2 to 2 c lower.

Coarse grains: Oats were weak, with scattered liquidation going on and the demand poor, with cash spreads off 1c. Barley held firm but no business could be confirmed. Rye followed the trend of wheat. The coarse grains generally were quiet with nothing of feature going on.

Oats closed 1/2 to 1 1/4 lower, barley 1/2 to 1 1/4 lower and rye 1/2 to 1 1/4 lower. Flax 1/2 to 1 1/4 lower.

Liverpool due 1/2 to 1 c lower, based on Winnipeg.

RECESSIONS AT MONTREAL MART

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

Why Must a Girl Have an Engagement Ring?
Worried Wife Should Prove Faith in Her Husband
By Ignoring Anonymous Letter—Bored Feminist

DEAR MISS DIX—Why is it that girls are so foolish over engagement rings? I am in love with the one and only girl, and it will be some time before I can marry, so I cannot see the necessity of buying a ring. She says she wants to tell the world by showing it. He is so apt to do anything else. I am surprised at her being so set on this point. Can you please advise me.

RED.

Answer—My dear Red, there are a lot of things that a man cannot understand about women and that keep him surprised to his dying day, so the wise thing for him to do is not to vex his mind trying to figure out the whys and the wherefores or to start something by arguing about them, but just to fall in with them.

His not to question why, his just to buy, so to speak, when it is a matter of engagement rings or anniversary presents or a box of candy or a bunch of flowers now and then if he wants to keep his wife eating out of his hand and sold to the idea that he has drawn the matrimonial prize.

As to why your girl insists on an engagement ring, that is easily explained. What the Croix de Guerre is to the soldier, her engagement ring is to a girl. It is her badge of honor that she can flaunt in the face of the world. It is the outward and visible sign of victory. It is the thing that she dreamed of having ever since she first began thinking about boys at all, and to deprive her of that is simply to prick her little pink balloon and deflate her romance and make it a flat, dull, prosaic transaction with no more thrill to it than any commonplace business trade.

Just think of all she would miss if she did not have an engagement ring. Nothing to gloat over, nothing to turn and twist on her finger and hold in the light and that light. Nothing to show the girls and have them "Oh" and "Ah" over. No excuse for telling that she is engaged. No putting it over the girls who are not lucky enough to have achieved that magic symbol that shows that they are desired and loved by some man.

You do not have to have a great deal of imagination, Red, to see what her engagement ring means to a girl, and I am sure that when you do realize its significance you will hurry out and buy her the very prettiest one that you can possibly afford. Remember that this is her great moment and that she will be grateful to you to the longest day that she lives if you will enter into her feelings about it and also that it will be a sore spot in her memory to her dying day if you do not.

And while we are on this subject of things that mean so much to a woman and mean so little to a man, let me urge you to try to accept, as a woman the way she is made and not waste any effort trying to bring her to commonsense point of view.

Why women put such stress on little things, goodness only knows. But they do. A wife will let her husband work himself to death to supply her with the comforts and luxuries of life and take it all for granted without so much as a "thank you." But she will shed tears of gratitude over a 10-cent bunch of flowers if he will bring them home to her because they match some dress she is going to wear to a party that night.

A wife will consider herself neglected if her husband merely supplies her with a charge account on which she could buy a ton of candy or a matched pearl necklace, but she will boast of his devotion to her if he brings her a box of chocolates or a string of glass beads.

Once upon a time I saw a rich woman's eyes fill up with tears as she looked at a modest fur coat that another woman was showing her. "Why," exclaimed her friend in surprise, "my coat is nothing compared to yours. Your is real sable." "I know," replied the rich woman, "but I had to wangle it out of my husband and go and buy it myself while your husband gave you yours as a surprise and picked it out himself and knew just what you wanted and could wear."

So there you are, Red. That is what you are going to be up against when you marry. The little things that women think more of than they do of the big things. Your wife wanting you to notice what she wears and when she combs her hair a new way and putting great stress on your observing anniversaries, when you met and when you got engaged and when you were married and her birthday, and if you look after these small details the great affairs will look after themselves.

And if your girl is, as you say, a good sport, she will be worth it. DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX—My husband and I have been married for ten years of perfect happiness, with me his first thought, but now I am undergoing grinding torment. Lately I have received two anonymous letters telling me to watch my husband and a widow who is in his employ. I have watched all hours of the day and night and have seen nothing suspicious. They both claim they are innocent. I demanded that he dismiss her, but when he told her to turn in her resignation she came to see me, pleading her case and telling me that I was taking the food from her and her sick mother and her child just on suspicion. I am not heartless, so I told her that I would sacrifice my happiness before I would have that against my conscience. The other day my husband was forced to cut her salary and she tried to kill him by throwing a stone at his head and then attempted to take her own life with a dagger letter-opener, but failed. Now do you not think I have a right to want her fired under any circumstances? D. D. L.

Answer—I think that if there ever was a case in which a woman should show mercy to a slaver woman and try to put herself in that woman's place, it is this. That this poor soul should have tried to kill your husband and kill herself is no proof of her guilt, but of her depression.

Try to think of what it means to a woman with a sick old mother and a helpless little child clinging to her skirts to be deprived of her job or even to have her pay cut down so that she cannot support them upon it. Think of the old mother and the little child crying to her for the bread she cannot give them. Think of them perhaps out upon the street with no roof to shelter them and you will not wonder that she was driven to a moment of madness.

And back of that mental torture she must have suffered at being accused of a crime of which both she and your husband declare they are innocent. It means as much to her to have her good name called in question as it would to you. More, perhaps, because if her reputation is damaged she will not find it easy to get another job and she becomes the target for scandal, and every rake of a man will feel he has the right to insult her.

You say that for ten years your husband has been devoted to you and his every thought has been of you. It seems to me that you make a poor return for that sort of love and faithfulness when you are ready to believe the worst of him without one iota of evidence against him and upon no better authority than a scurrilous letter written by a coward who would not even sign his or her name. Knowing your husband as you do, you might have more faith in him and I should think that your suspicions would stab him to the heart.

My advice to you is to prove your love to your husband by ignoring these anonymous letters, written by someone who wanted to hurt you and if any more come burn them unread. Then go to this poor woman and take her by the hand and try to help her instead of getting her fired. DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a girl bored to death, with nothing to do. Girls do not get an even break in this world. Why cannot we join the army and navy as boys do?

Answer—I do not think you would find the army and navy very exciting in peacetime, and if there should be a war there is something doing you can go into the push in some feminine capacity. Why do you not put in the time preparing yourself for some worthwhile career that you can follow when times get better? DOROTHY DIX.

Horoscope

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 10, 1932

Unusually stars this today, according to astrology. Under this planetary government caution should be exercised in word and deed.

It is not a lucky day for starting anything important and it is wise not to discuss plans for the future.

Under this way merchants may be annoyed by delays in shipments and unpected trade conditions. The wise will be conservative in buying, but they are likely to have a brisk autumn trade.

This rule of the stars is not favorable to the legal profession. Lawyers may be subjected to prejudice and unfair criticism. Agitation regarding defenders of criminals is forecast.

While this configuration continues educators, including heads of schools and colleges, may be overlaid with unusual problems, but they are assured by the stars that the coming year is to be of brilliant achievement on the part of students.

Under this way there may be much camouflaging of political sentiments and prospects. Secret and misleading policies are forecast.

There is a fortunate aspect for workers of many classes and the forecast of employment that is to begin a new prosperity. Land values are to increase in many places at this time. When real estate operators seem likely to profit.

The rule of the stars is not promising for domestic harmony, and again the seers prophesy that divorce is to become too prevalent to be tolerated calmly.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of activity in business and financial affairs. They should be careful in making investments, for losses are foretold. While this planetary government continues workers will see with less of heart interest than head inclination. Mercenary considerations may be uppermost.

Children born on this day probably will be keen of mind and inclined to many interests. The subjects of this sign usually are very energetic and successful.

Joseph Pulitzer, founder of The New York World, was born on this day, 1847. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include Jay Cooke, 1832, financier; A. S. Abell, 1866, founder of The Philadelphia Public Ledger; and Horace White, 1834, journalist and author.

Intend To Sell Big Freighter in China

Crew of Ss. Chief Capilano Returns Here From Orient By President Madison

Former Biggest Freighter in the World Is Now For Sale at Hongkong

Twelve members of the crew of the big Vancouver freighter Chief Capilano arrived in Victoria this morning from the Orient as special class passengers aboard the American Mail liner Princess Kathleen. They left their ship in Hongkong where it is hoped to sell her.

In charge of Malcolm McLean, the party left for Vancouver at 2 o'clock this afternoon by the Ss. Princess Kathleen. They are all Vancouver men.

Leaving Vancouver five months ago the Chief Capilano took a full cargo of British Columbia products to Japan and after discharging at Yokohama and Kobe, tied up for four months at the latter port. The members of the crew enjoyed their stay at Yokohama, and traveled to inland places in Japan.

When the freighter was not sold in Japan, orders were received from the head offices of the Canadian-American Shipping Company in Vancouver to send her to Hongkong. As soon as she arrived there word came from Vancouver ordering the ship, with the exception of the captain and chief engineer, home. The last crew saw of her was from the deck of the Princess Kathleen as she steamed out of the harbor.

Members of the crew who were here this morning were Reginald P. Allard, James R. Allen, John Archer, Leonard Jack, D. Dobell, Walter P. Fisher, Alexander C. Jones, Allen G. Strong and Robert Watson.

Up to a few years ago the Chief Capilano was known as one of the largest freighters in the world. Although her home port is really Vancouver, she is registered in Hongkong. She was built at Westwood, Germany, in 1920, and has served in many parts of the world, although her regular trade route has been across the Pacific between British Columbia and the Orient.

She is registered at 10,693 tons, has a length of 523 feet, a breadth of 65 feet and a depth of 30 feet.

The ship was owned by the late Capt. Robert Dollar, and until the time of his death, control of the Canadian-American Shipping Company.

RETURN FROM ORIENT TOURS

President Madison Brings Back Young Women Tourists From Across Pacific

Business Men From Many Places in Far East Also Among Passengers

Returning from summer tours to China, Japan and the Philippine Islands, many young people, students and teachers of many colleges and universities throughout the United States, passed through Victoria this morning as passengers aboard the American Mail liner Princess Kathleen.

Miss Edna Dean Baker and Miss Clara Bell Baker, young members of the faculty of Northwestern University in Chicago, were two of the most excited passengers aboard the Princess Kathleen. They had seen plenty in the Orient they said, but were thrilled at the thought of getting home within four days. They visited many out-of-the-way places in China, they saw the Great Wall and climbed Mount Fuji. But there are not so many tourists in the Orient as in former years, they reported, and it was terribly hot in Shanghai.

Miss Lucille Halsey, Miss Beatrice Ham, Miss Doris Ham, Miss Betty Ham, Miss Dorothy Reed, Miss Gertrude Simon, Miss Fern Sollenberger, Miss Elizabeth Walton, Miss Mary MacDonald, Mrs. L. B. Meckler, Mrs. Peter Deer, Miss Melville Flynn were other young women tourists returning from the Far East.

Business men aboard the Princess Kathleen included George Happer, general manager of the Dietrich Brothers Tobacco Company of Shanghai, going to New York on business; Robert G. Kendall, manager in Manila of the States Steamship Line, one of the most important transportation companies in the Orient; Robert T. Forbes, a well-known Y.M.C.A. official who has traveled in the interior of China, going to Detroit with his wife and three children; and Jas. E. McCall, an employee of the United States Bureau of Education at Manila returning to Washington on furlough.

Two prominent Japanese business men who traveled across the Pacific by the Princess Kathleen were K. Takel and Y. Yamakura, of Katsura Silk Company of Tokyo, going through to New York.

Shidzuoka Maru in Yesterday Afternoon With Passengers and Cargo From Japan

After a two-week voyage across the North Pacific from Yokohama, the N.Y.K. liner Shidzuoka Maru docked at the Ogden Point piers at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon and continued her voyage to Seattle at 6 o'clock. Capt. Katsutaro Sato, master of the ship, reported a good trip, with the exception of some fog off the coast.

For Victoria the liner had two tourist cabin passengers and five stowage. The tourist passengers were William Charles Blackadder of Tientsin, going through to New York, and A. F. McKenzie, en route to Toronto. Both spent the night at the Empress Hotel and left this afternoon by the Ss. Princess Kathleen for Vancouver en route east.

Four young ladies were also aboard, returning to their homes in California after visiting the Orient. They were Miss Margaret and Miss Rebekah Gibbons, Miss Margaret MacMillan and Miss Margaret MacMillan. All other passengers aboard the ship were Japanese.

The Shidzuoka Maru also brought over forty tons of general cargo for Victoria and a good parcel, including some raw silk, for Seattle.

The liner President Madison was fast alongside the Rithet docks this morning at 8:45 o'clock, from the Philippine Islands, China and Japan. She cleared for Seattle at 9 o'clock. Capt. R. Healy, U.S.N.R., master of the ship, reported a good voyage across the North Pacific from Yokohama.

The Madison brought in one of the largest silk cargoes to pass through this port in some time. There were close to 4,000 bales of the raw product aboard, most of which is going east by special train from Seattle.

A small amount of the raw silk was left here, some to go south this evening by the Ss. H. F. Alexander and some for transshipment to Vancouver en route over Canadian lines to eastern United States silk mills.

The liner had a total list of 160 passengers. Seventeen special class and a number of tourist stowage passengers disembarked here on their way to Vancouver.

TAKES AIRPLANE TO COCOS ISLAND

Seattle, August 9.—Bound for Cocos Island to join the treasure-hunting expedition, which sailed from Vancouver early this year, J. G. Turgeon, executive vice-president of the Cocos Island Treasure Company, left Seattle Sunday afternoon on a five-day airplane trip.

Mr. Turgeon will go to the island by way of Los Angeles, Dallas, Mexico City, San Salvador and Costa Rica. He will join the Seattle motorship Silver Wave at Punta Arenas and go to Cocos Island aboard her to aid the members of the expedition in searching for the hidden treasure.

Mr. Turgeon said he was not at liberty to discuss his mysterious trip by plane to aid in the search for the pirate chest said to contain millions of dollars worth of gold and precious jewels, but it was rumored on the Seattle waterfront that the expedition had located some of the treasure with the aid of a metalophone invented by A. E. Chaston of Vancouver.

Ralph Lomen, president of the Arctic Transport Company, owner of the Silver Wave, said the vessel was at Punta Arenas, Costa Rica, waiting for Mr. Turgeon. He said the little ship was to arrive back in Seattle October 15.
